Foreword

We have set many goals to be achieved and surpassed in our lifetime; some of these milestones, already written in our book of memories, radiate a warm glow of personal satisfaction as we recall their significance. Looking toward the future, we see that here, too, is contained the hope of cherished dreams — a hope which can only be realized through faith: faith in ourselves, that we may walk confidently down the road of life, meeting every setback with courage, and every success with humility; faith in man, holding his dreams and goals as dearly as our own, knowing that he prizes them more highly than life itself; faith in the future, secure in our knowledge that we who will mold it are well-prepared to fulfill our task. Above all this, however, is our faith in God, knowing that He whose hand created us and gave us life will ever watch over His children. With this most sacred trust, all else will follow.

Content with our past and secure in our future, we, the graduating class of 1958, are justly proud of our accomplishments and pray that we may further exemplify and follow those trusts we hold so dear, for in these things, we place our faith.

Dedication

We, the graduating class of 1958, dedicate this third edition of the Gryphon to you, our parents and guardians, in loving and grateful acknowledgment of the sacrifices you have made, in order that we might enjoy the countless opportunities and advantages which your efforts and prayers have made possible. As we take this important step of graduation, it is with the realization that you have molded our characters and personalities as best you were able, knowing that although we are masters of our own destinies, the pathways we choose are through the influence which you have exercised over our minds and beings.

In dedicating this yearbook, a record of our achievements and accomplishments, we are aware that it is you who have made all this possible. For the confidence, the trust, and the faith which you have instilled in our hearts, we are forever indebted; for these are the things that go beyond material possession. But most of all, we thank you for the love and undying affection with which you have worked to mold us into something far greater than we see or realize. As we now say "thank you" with our lips, so we will try to express our love and appreciation by dedicating our lives to the fulfillment of the ideals and standards which you have held so dear.

In our advisors...

...supporting us in these first shaky
steps directed toward our goals.

Harold F. Scott
Principal

Since his graduation from the University of Rhode Island in 1929, Harold F. Scott has been affiliated with the Warwick school system. Because of his desire to do administrative work, Mr. Scott wanted to learn about the various phases of teaching; consequently, he gained experience in several subject areas, including business and history. He assumed the role of principal with the opening of Aldrich High School five years later. Named principal of Warwick Veterans Memorial High School early in 1954, Mr. Scott began working strenuously to perfect the goal he had won.

Having coached baseball and football in previous years, Mr. Scott felt qualified to cope with the problems faced by the Secondary School Principals' Athletic Committee; and for three of his eleven-year membership, he has served as the chairman of the committee.

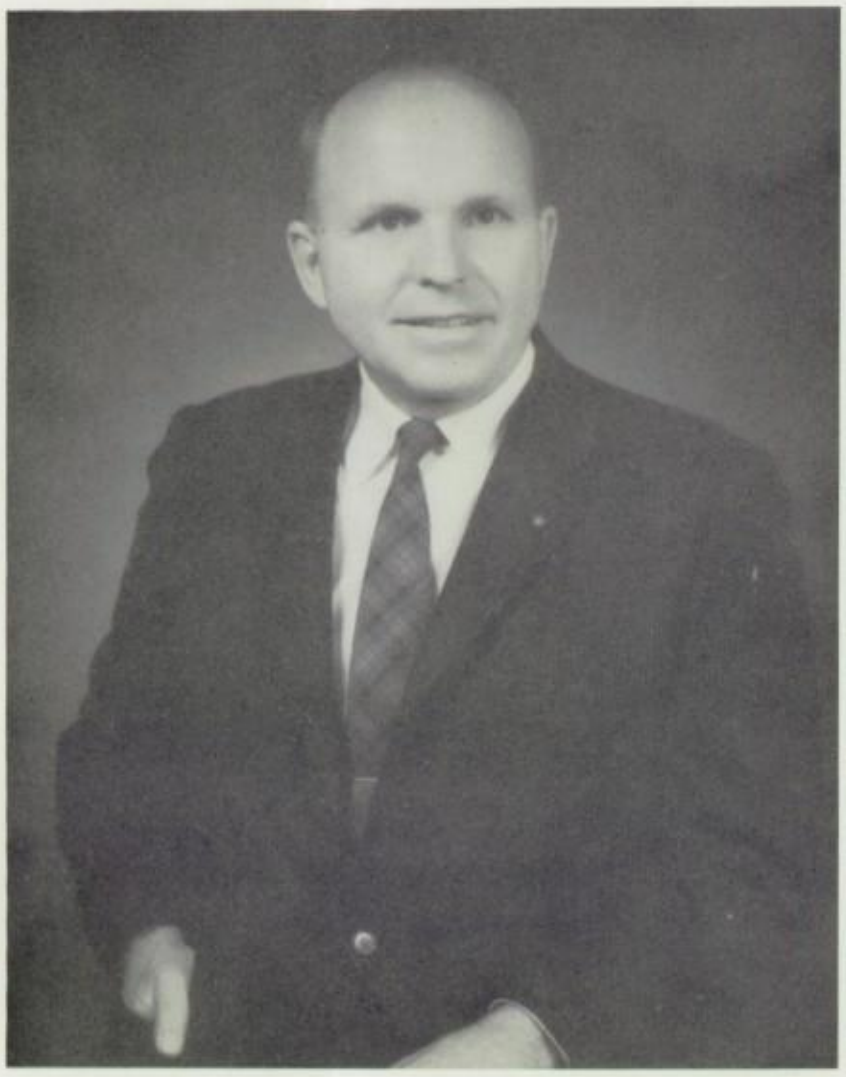
Mr. Scott has received recognition from the New England Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools; he was elected first Vice-President in 1957. Also consuming much of his time are the New England Association of Colleges and Secondary School Principals and the National Secondary School Principals. Membership in such organizations gives Mr. Scott a deeper insight into the problems and responsibilities encountered by school principals.

J. Irving Mournighan
Assistant Principal

J. Irving Mournighan, in his position as vice-principal of Warwick Veterans Memorial High School, is constantly endeavoring to promote and perfect the various activities and tasks assigned to him. Now completing his 20th year in the Warwick school system, Mr. Mournighan has previously taught in the Aldrich Junior-Senior High School, where he served as hockey coach and athletic director. His present duties are many and varied; besides assisting Mr. Scott in the tasks necessary to make our school outstanding, Mr. Mournighan maintains discipline and has charge of student attendance. His optimistic and challenging outlook is well expressed when he says: "We are the keepers of a sacred place. Our graduates and students are living images of those for whom it was dedicated. We shall strive to honor the trust placed in us and are determined that the Warwick Veterans Memorial High School will be second to none."

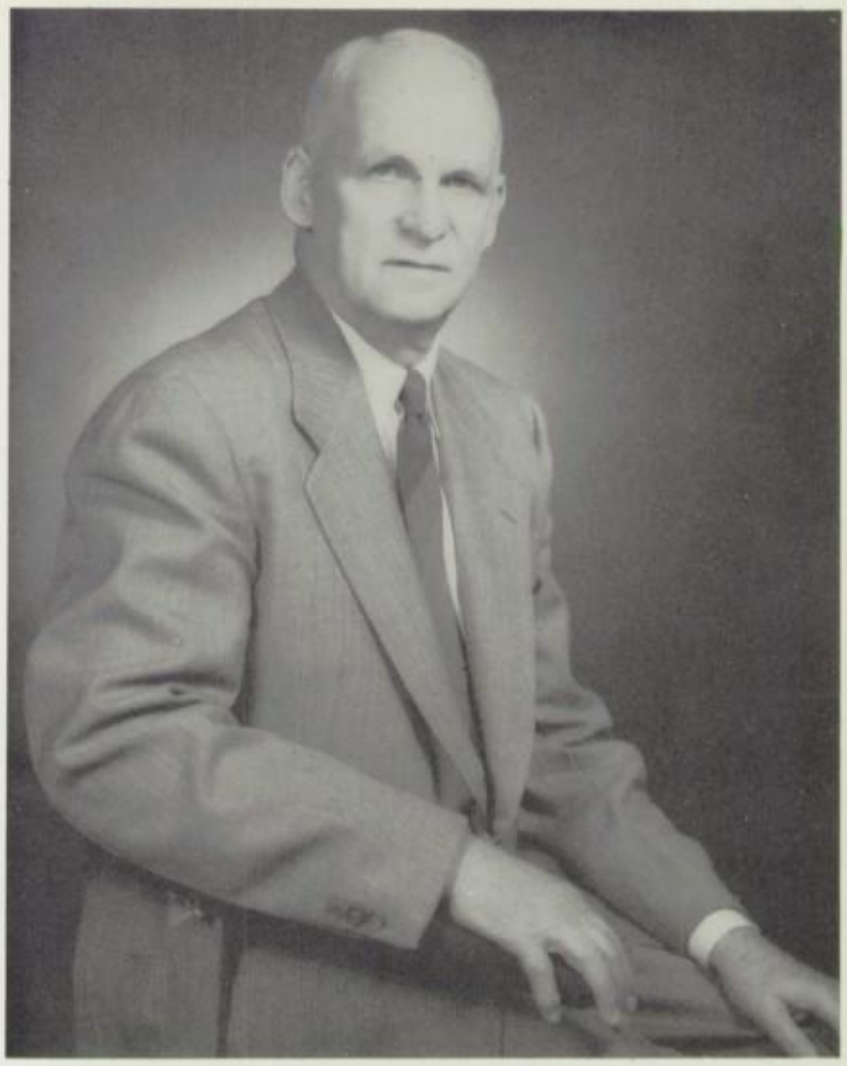
Charles B. MacKay
Superintendent, Warwick Schools

Seen frequently in the corridors of Warwick Veterans Memorial High School is Mr. Charles B. MacKay, Superintendent of Schools. He gives a friendly greeting to many; furthermore, he prides himself on knowing the names of the members of his large teaching staff. Mr. MacKay became affiliated with the Warwick school system in 1948 as superintendent. Prior to this, he had gained much experience in dealing with various types of people — working as an insurance salesman; serving on the Rhode Island Board of Agriculture; and handling public relations for the New Haven Railroad. After receiving his masters degree, Mr. MacKay taught in several Providence schools and served as principal in three. Throughout this time, he did some coaching in football, basketball, hockey, and baseball; in fact, he refereed high school and college football until 1954. No one has greater interest in promoting the welfare of the teaching personnel and student body than does Mr. MacKay.



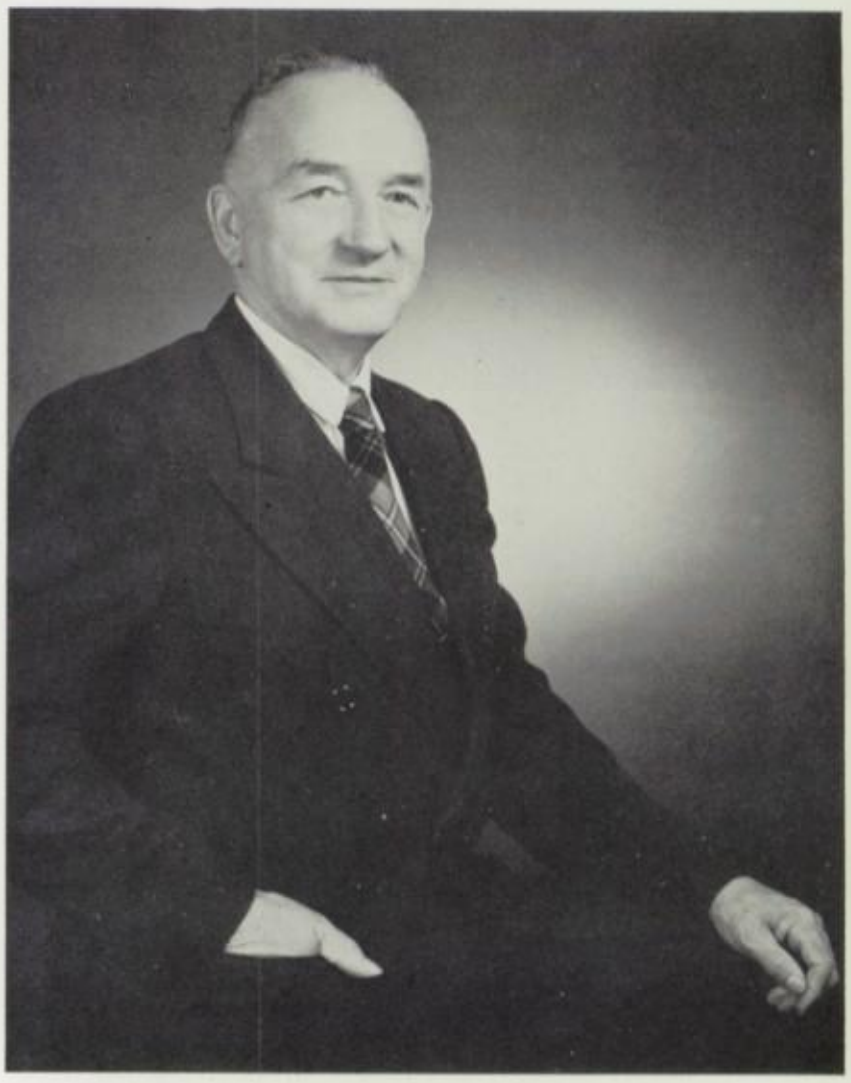
Horace E. Hobbs
Assistant Superintendent, Warwick Schools

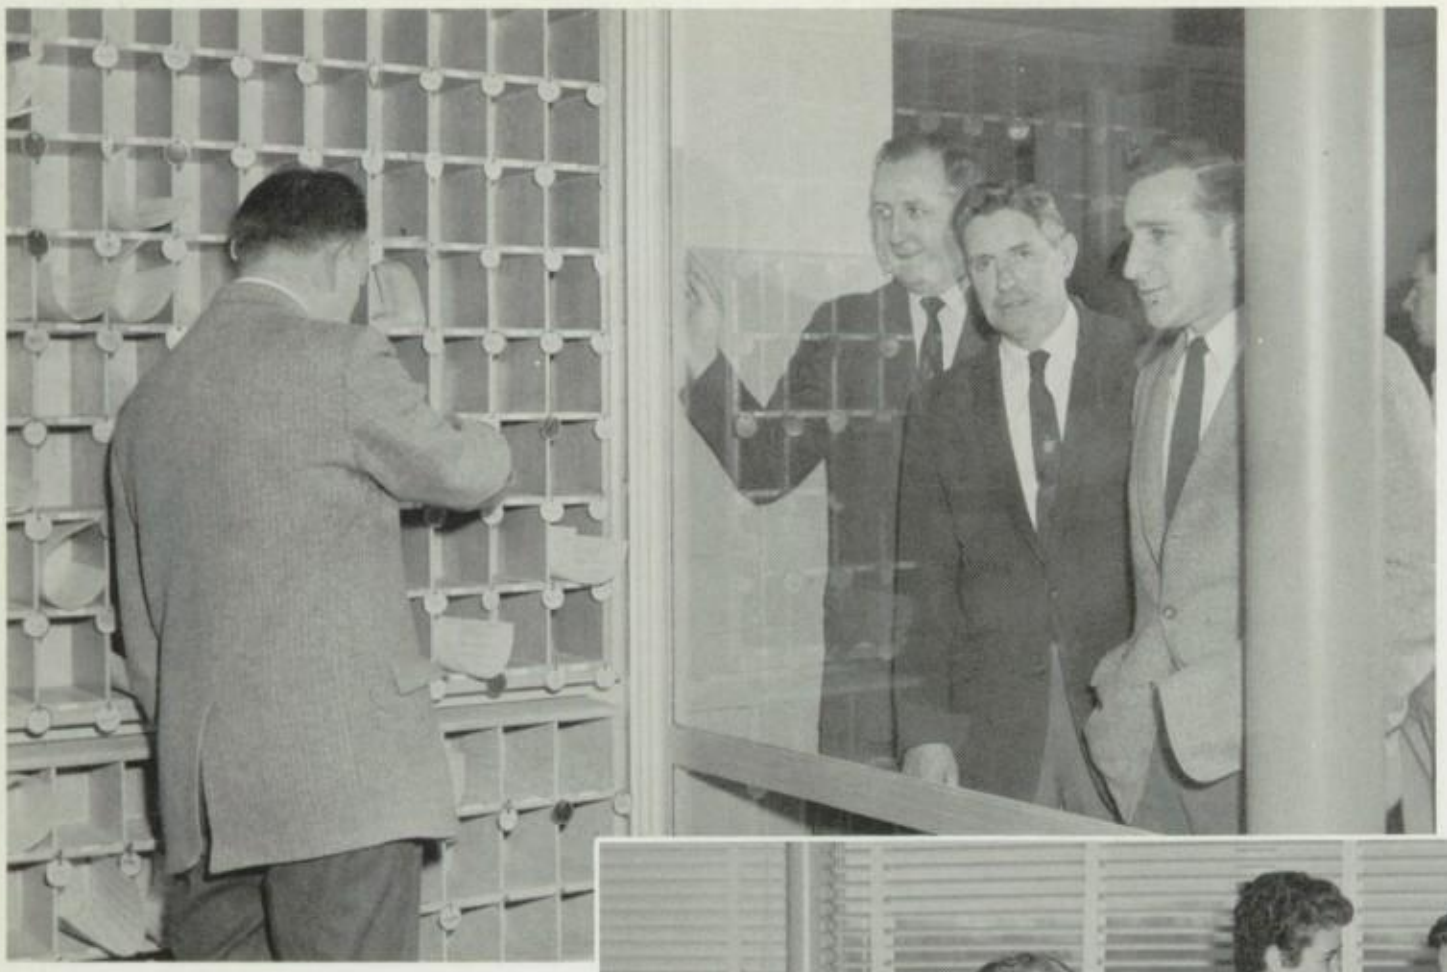
A frequent and interested classroom visitor is Mr. Hobbs, Assistant Superintendent in charge of secondary education. His friendly smile and warm "hello" elicit the respect and admiration of students and faculty alike. Mr. Hobbs, who assumed his present position in 1945, has been active in the field of education for 36 years, having begun his teaching career in New Hampshire. Extensive travel throughout the United States and Canada, Mexico, and the Caribbean, along with a variety of teaching experiences in several different states have combined to give Mr. Hobbs an invaluable combination of an understanding of educational problems and an insight into the many problems confronting a school administrator.



Clarence S. Taylor
Deputy Superintendent, Warwick Schools

Mr. Clarence S. Taylor has fulfilled the difficult and demanding position of Assistant Superintendent of Warwick Schools since 1952 and was appointed Deputy Superintendent in January, 1958. He came to Rhode Island in 1929 from a teaching position in Connecticut and served as coach and assistant principal at Hope and Mount Pleasant High Schools in Providence. Mr. Taylor has gained much experience and a knowledge of people in the armed forces, in which he served as Lieutenant Commander in the Navy in World War II, and in his 25 years as athletic coach and official in football, basketball, and hockey, As he states, his hope for the future is to help Warwick to maintain first-class schools in a very difficult period of expansion.





Allen Swann, John McGiveney, and John Venditto appear very interested in the contents of Joseph McKeon's mail box.

As Mary Petrella and Linda Jonassen count ticket sales for a coming event, Michael Morry and Carmela Santoro discus the schedule of activities with Marianna Willard, Social Coordinator.

Talking in the doorway of one of the several guidance offices are Esther Conlin and John Salesses. Perhaps they are comparing notes on a student.

Found in the business office for a meeting are Shirley Bourbeau, Jerry DeLuca, Lucy Bottone, Francis Corcoran, and Delores Wilson.

Faculty

Congratulations (or condolences) for completing a year of English in D-308. Rest for 10 weeks to get ready for the junior year.
-Mrs. Bourgaize

Jean Bourgaize and Richard Taylor, as well as Joseph Rohloff and Elizabeth Duffy, think it's about time they did some of that extra reading they had planned.

"Smile now . . ." Here, quite willingly accommodating the staff photographer, are Georges Bockstael, Margaret Early, Barry Smith, and William Marinelli.

On an unexpected visit to the greenhouse, Elizabeth Price shows a healthy African violet to Frederick Stedman, Dorothy Mayor, Alfred Saute, John Lombardi, and Kennth Riley.

Faculty

Waiting for an evaluation meeting to begin, Mary Hanna, Eleanor Scott, Virginia Lewis, Robert Montaquila, and Herbert Luft pause in the Social Studies conference room for the camera.

Enjoying a brief coffee break during a free period are Grace Rafanelli, Alice Hurl, William McDevitt, Elizabeth Donnelly, Thomas Shola, and Thomas Lavery.

Dr. Paul Wiggin, Janet Camper, Josephine DelVecchio, Peter Doley, and Karl Rittman have admired the large showcase in C wing which contains the efforts of the Crafts classes, the Art classes, and those in Power and Wood.

Paul C. Wiggin

Waiting for a secretary to hand them their salary checks are Gwendolyn Libby, Ethel Reid, Richard Johnson, and Louise Wilbur.

Good luck George!
In band and everything else!
Gwen Libby

During the short respite on a busy day, William DeRoin, Theodore Hoffman, Robert Mignone, Raymond Carroll, John MacLean, and Edward Roth appreciate a humorous anecdote.

Waiting to pay their lunch checks are Francis Crawley, Barbara Kemalian, Janice Barwick, Loretta Ross, Donald D'Amato, and Alfred Pascale.

Interrupted for a moment from a relaxing chat in the B wing faculty room are Beatrice Colvin, Audrey Riley, Mary T. Knight, Frances Otis, and Myrtle Godwin.

Faculty

Pausing for a few moments during a period of relaxation in the Hospitality Center are Edna Shanley, Anna Moroney, Theodore Nordyke, Roger Vermeersch, and Beatrice West.

Ruth Shailer awaits her turn as Daniel Pendergast, supported by the nurse, Mrs. Lundin, and Robert Miller are given their polio injections by Dr. Gilbert Houston.

Deep in the machinery of the Power Shop are Minard Price, Phillip Barker, Eugene Pernaveau, Robert Duclos, Albert Mezzanotti, and Raymond Amend.

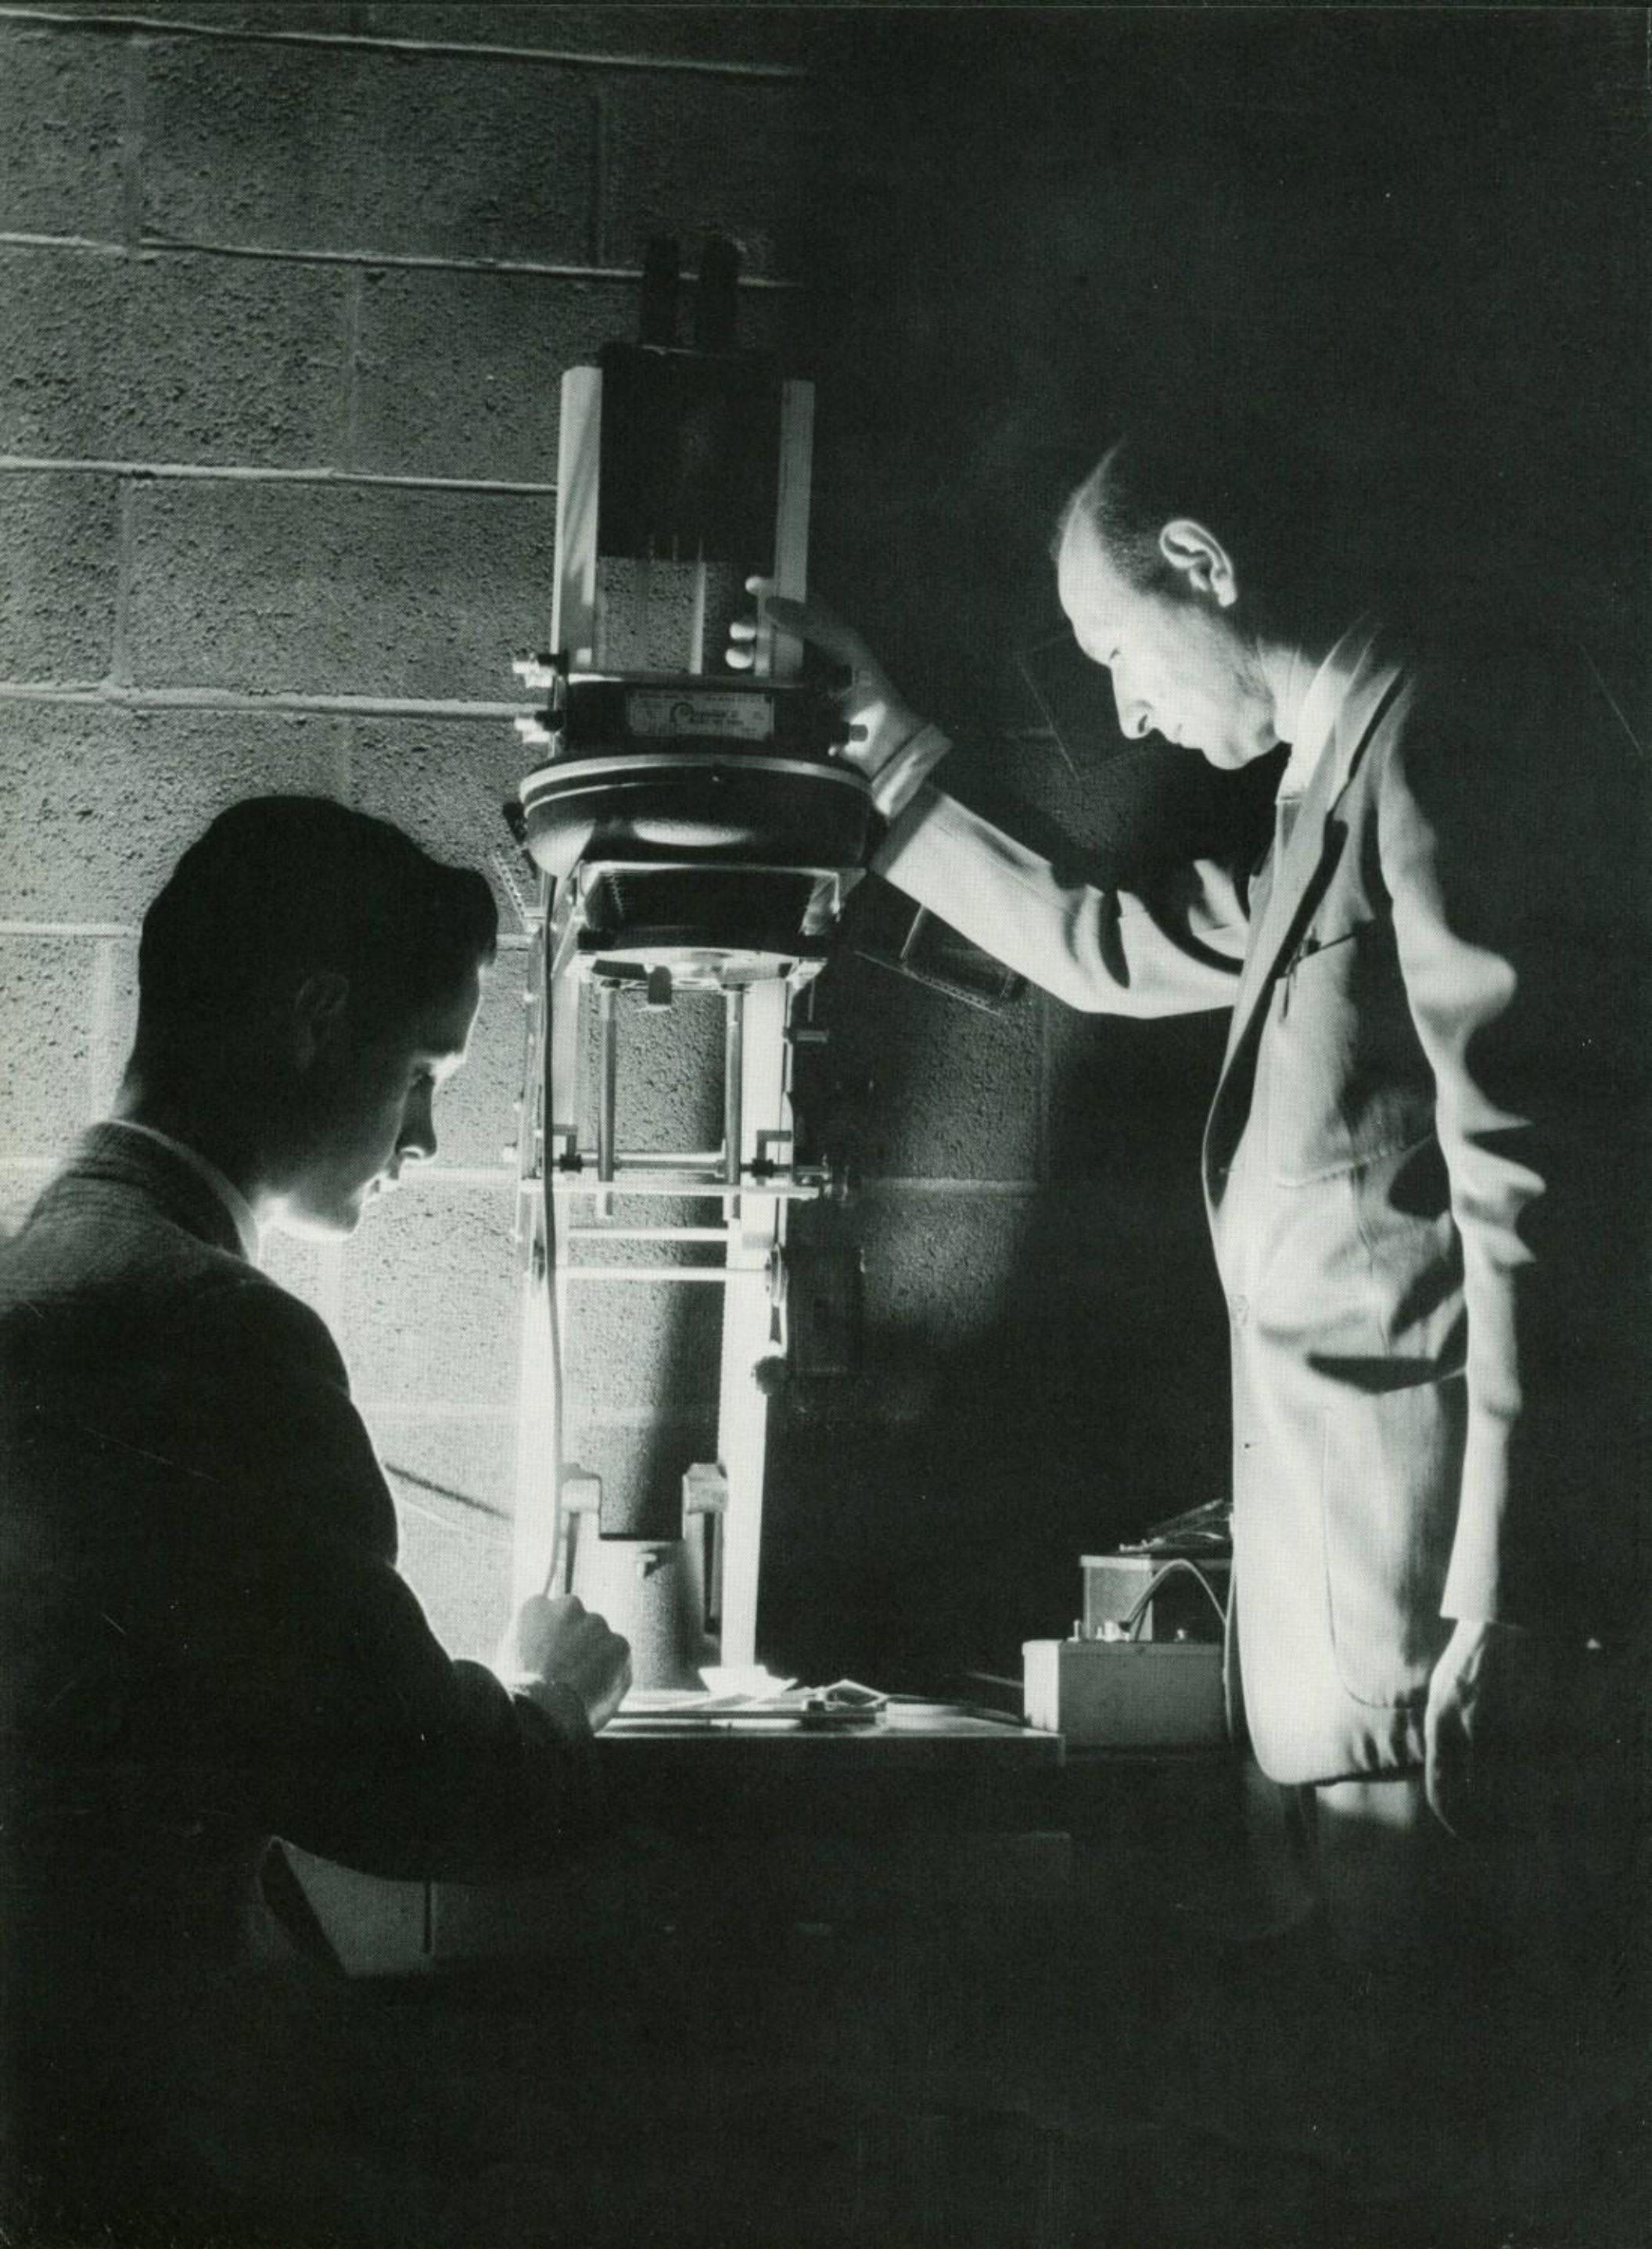
Edmund Jusczyk, Marjorie Morando, Edna Downs, Doris Bailey, and Avon Hall are looking forward to a peppy volleyball warm-up.

Best wishes to an excellent student.
Richard F. Hayes

It never seems as painful to teachers as it is to students. Coming into school are Robert Shapiro, Arthur Matteson, Joan O'Brien, and Richard Hayes.

Mary Frances Petrarca, Stephen Sambor, Ann Gibbons, Robert Perrone, Doris King, and Elizabeth Dinsmoor sit in the guidance office waiting for the first bell.

Standing in the projection booth above the auditorium are John Saroian, Grace Tarring, Hazel Daily, Mildred Turner, and Mary Mulligan.



In our achievements...

...that we may grow through our accomplishments and be strengthened by our knowledge.

Conducted for the student with a keen interest in the art and craft of fiction and non-fiction, Miss Petrella's Creative Writing class here gives Janice Richards constructive criticism for her first draft.

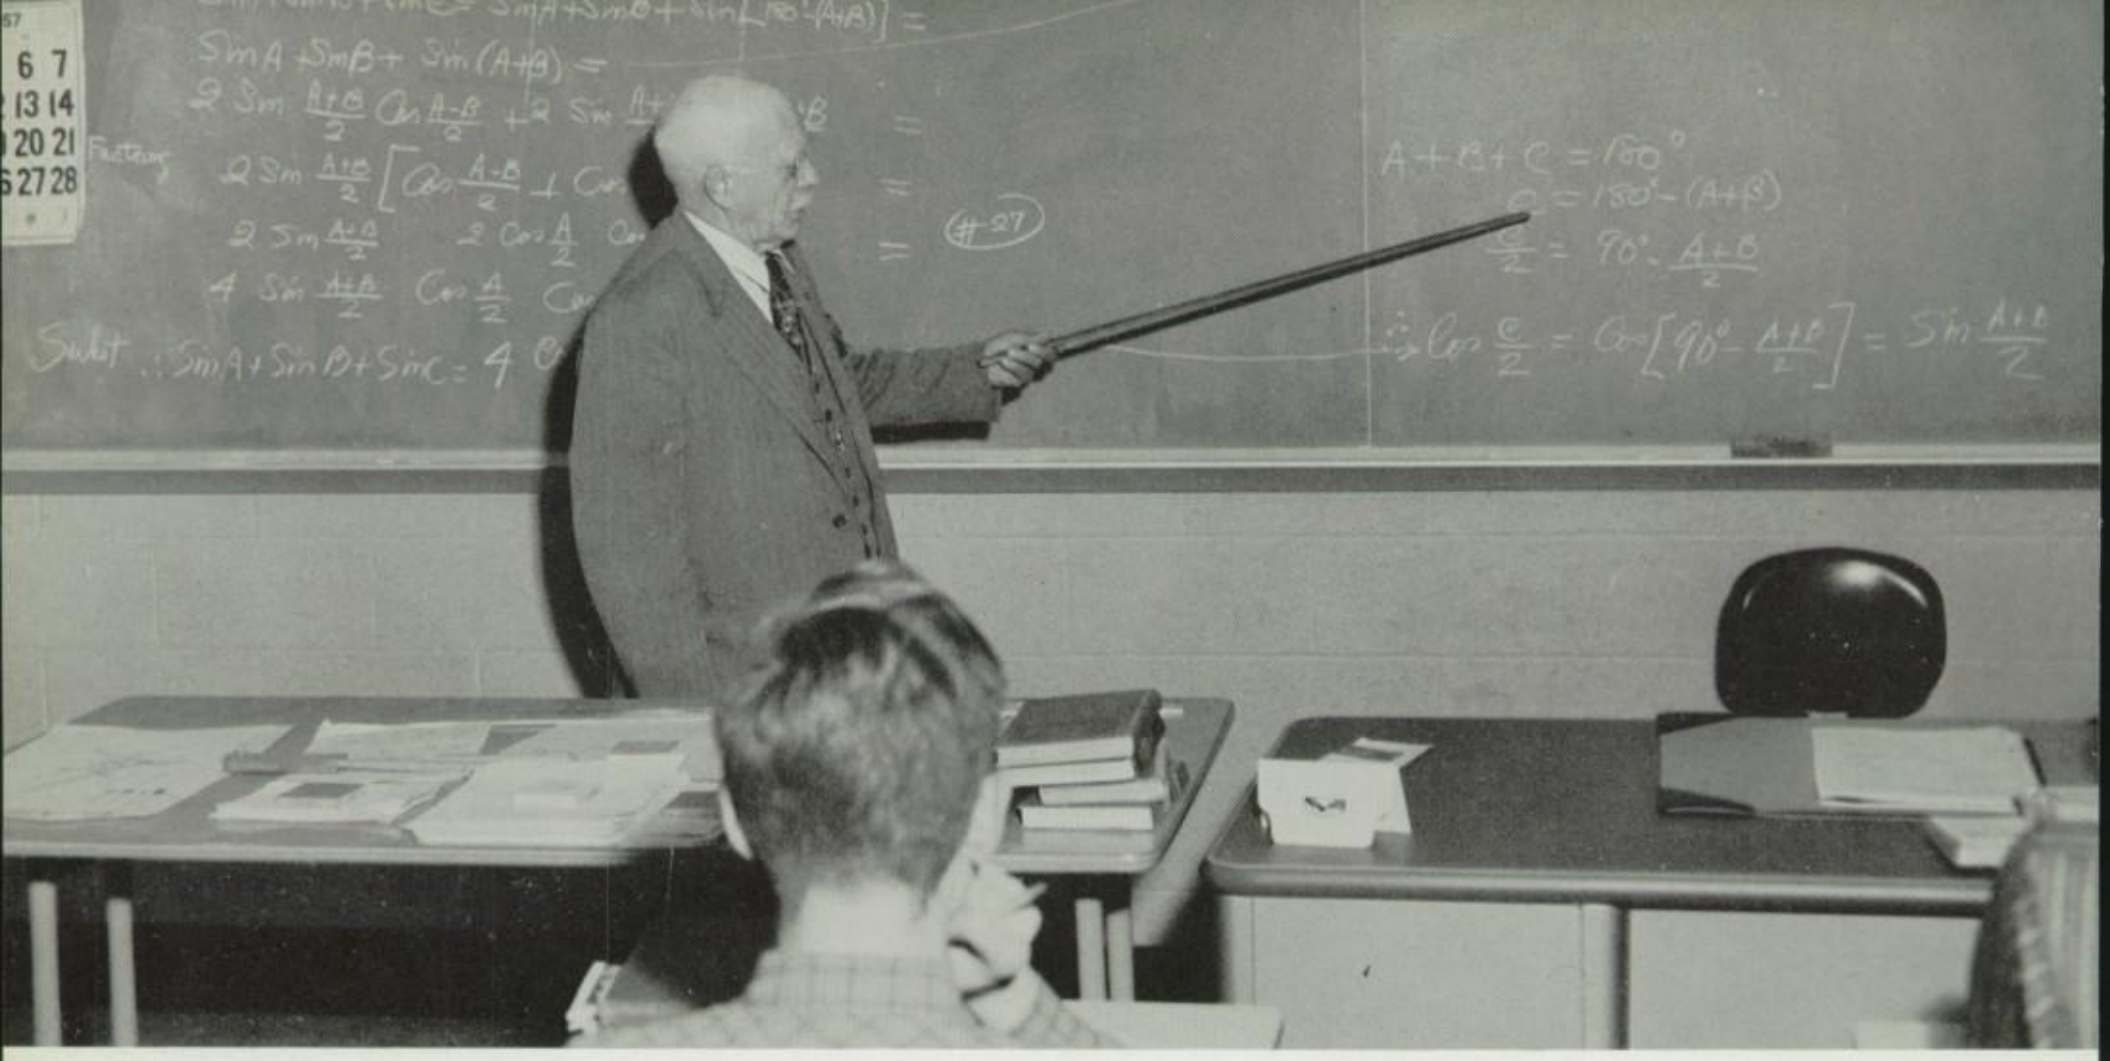
Miss Santoro's Problems of American Democracy class, which considers the major social, political, and economic problems that confront our nation today, faces its own economic problem while trying to raise funds for a spring exchange trip with students from Roosevelt High School, Wyandotte, Michigan. Since the students must finance the entire trip themselves, they are shown selling Christmas trees as one source of income.

Leading into the special course in English Literature which concentrates on the Romantic Period with its intellectual background is the Effective Writing course in which training in all phases of writing techniques is offered. Miss Shanley shows colored slides of Anne Hathaway's cottage in connection with the study of Shakespeare.

To create a greater understanding of the heritage and culture of a nation

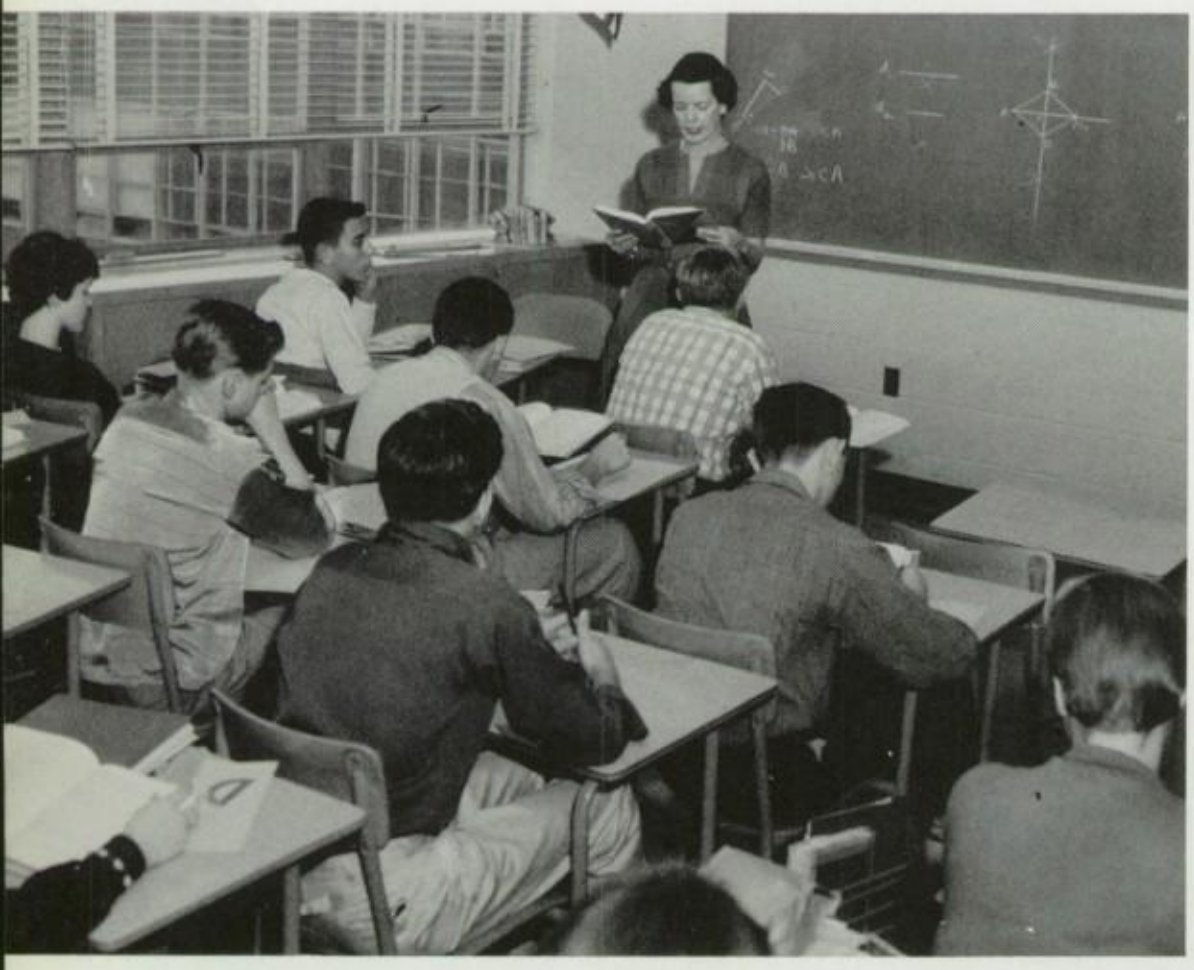
A requirement for graduation as well as a prerequisite for the studies of P.A.D., United States History offers an insight into the problems affecting a great nation and its growth from a colonial empire to the leading world power.

Intended as a parallel to a course in English Literature offered in senior English, Miss Santoro's English History class studies the historical development of England in order to broaden their understanding of its literature. Some of the students are examining the battleground of the War of the Roses and will later use this historical knowledge with their study of literature.



To the industrious students who have successfully attained a commendable mark in the prerequisite subjects of Algebra I and II and Plane Geometry falls the formidable task of solving the infinite number of sine, cosine, and tangent problems involved in the never-ending struggle with trigonometry, enlightened only by the assistance of Mr. Taylor.

To enlighten the leaders of tomorrow's scientific world



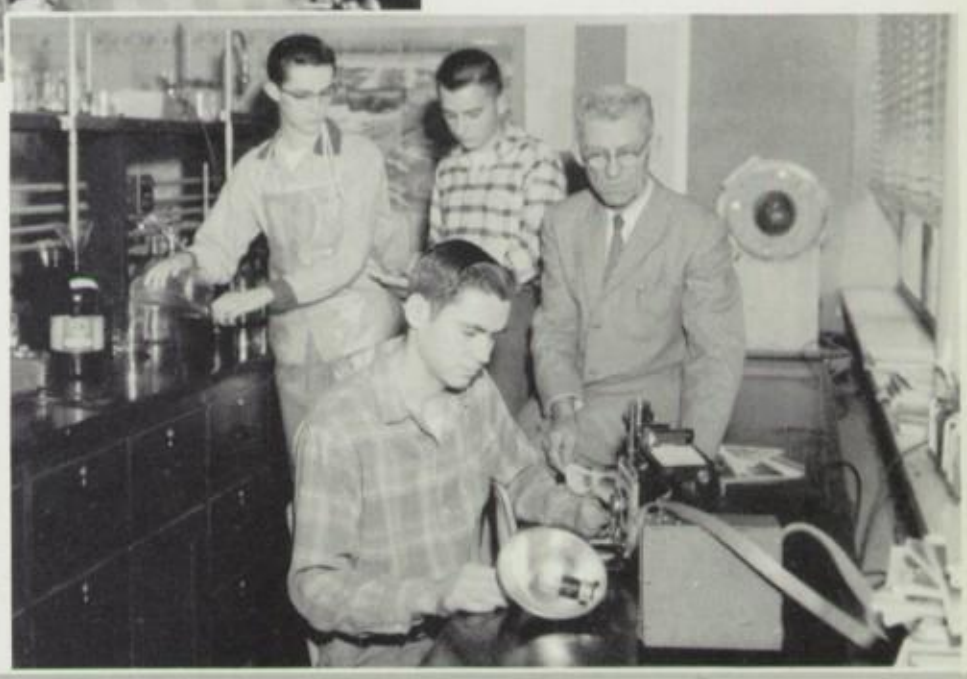
Designed to form a foundation for higher math, this geometry class, instructed by Mrs. Otis, strives to understand the theorums and axioms needed to prove triangle ABC congruent to triangle ADC. Those who are not able to prove ABC congruent to ADC will find that higher math is above their reach.

Standing on the bridge of B208, Mr. DeRoin and Martha Very attempt to conquer the problems of distance and time,and hope for a high tide.

Under the supervision of Mr. Hoffman and with the active interest of the students, many species of the fascinating world of Rodentia have been obtained.

A Physics II course emphasizes electronics and radio isotopes. The applications of modern physics such as radio and television, are also explored. Mr. McKeon demonstrates many principles to his B period class.

Members of Mr. Rohloff's Research Science group probe those phases of science which have captured their interest. A natural outgrowth of this course is the preparation of Science Fair projects.



These aspiring students of Mr. Carroll's Chemistry class are attempting through their experiments to satisfy the doubts of the curious and to prove the theories of the optimistic.

To cultivate a deeper appreciation of the customs and traditions of foreign lands

To gain an insight into the culture and background of a nation and to arrive at a better understanding of its people are the primary purposes of the study of a foreign language. Here it is exemplified in Mr. Saute's French II class. In addition to broadening his intellectual powers, the student also becomes familiar with the countries, the customs, and the people.

If the photograph of Mrs. Scott's German III class were accompanied by sound, the gutteral accents which would emerge would provide a better picture of what is taking place.

In this Spanish II class, recorded Spanish operettas are being used as another device to add color and interest to the course. While listening to the recording that Mr. Mignone is playing, these students gain from the lyrics a further knowledge and understanding of the Spanish language.

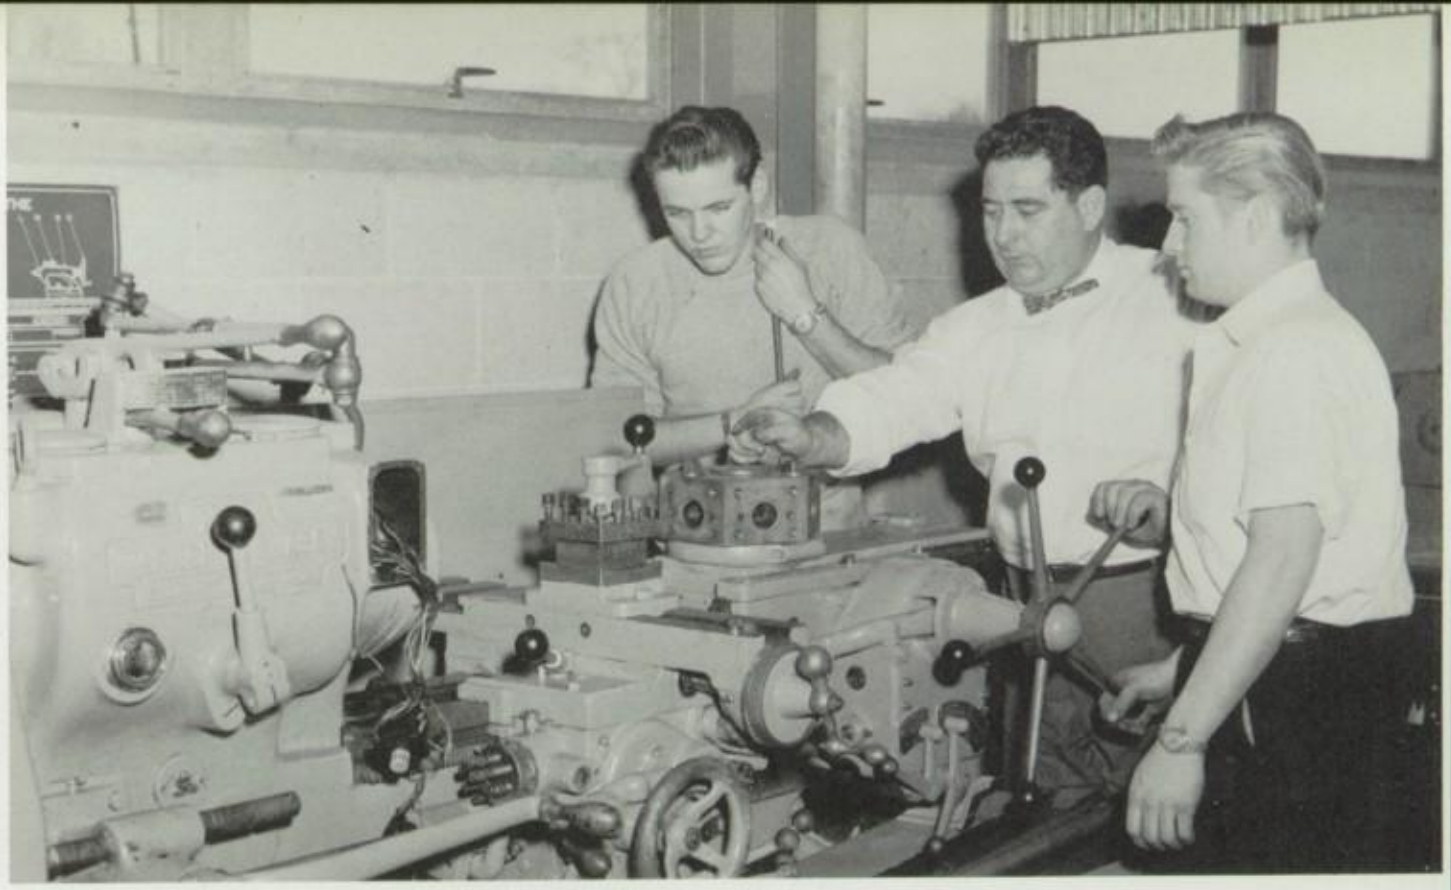
To acquire a proficient foundation in useful skills

The financial affairs of the school are handled in the Student Finance Office. Under the supervision of Mary T. Knight and Audrey Riley, students in Bookkeeping keep a careful account of the money paid out and earned in various school activities. Over $40,000 passes through this office in the course of a year.

These students have the unique opportunity of increasing their speed in one of the finest typing rooms of its kind in New England. The room, which is equipped with thirty-five electric typewriters, is one of several classrooms, the latter furnished with one hundred manually operated typewriters.

The use of the ediphone is only one of the many business machines in use in the department. Students also learn how to operate comptometers, duplicating machines, and other standard equipment necessary in the business field.

To assist the industrialist of the future through greater opportunity



To gain appreciation of good workmanship, a knowledge of industry, and a degree of skill which later will offer a student the opportunity to qualify for an apprenticeship, these boys elected a course in Industrial Arts. Mr. Duclos is instructing two of his students in the art of operating a turret lathe which was obtained through the combined efforts of Sealol, Hammel-Dahl, and the school department.

In Power Shop students are given the opportunity to work on automobiles, outboards, and communications while under the direction of Mr. Perneveau. He is seen instructing some of his students in the repair of a generator.

Reading blueprints and using special instruments in laying out a design are only two phases of drafting taught by Mr. McGiveney. Future engineering students find this course most valuable in their further studies.

To develop physical health and mental well-being

Under the direction of Mr. Hall, Mr. Jusczyk, and Mr. Miller, the boys develop the skills necessary to participate actively in all sports. Intensely concentrating on the path of the ball, these boys practice the skills of basketball in relay events.

Because physical as well as mental growth is needed in order to obtain a well-rounded education, the course offers a great variety of activities from the trampoline to rope climbing.

Miss Morando indicates the proper position to achieve. Exercising is included in many classes for it encourages better posture and develops the latent muscles.

"On guard . . . lunge!" is the command given to Mrs. Downs' fencing group. Fencing instruction is given to all grades; the sophomores receive the basic steps, while the juniors and seniors progress to regular matches. Mrs. Downs and Miss Bailey conduct an after-school Fencing Club for those with a keen interest for the sport.

To gain an insight into the world of the artistic

Illustrated here are several phases of the work done in a Crafts class in which a student need not necessarily be an artist; he need only enjoy working with his hands. In the course of a year, students have experience in leatherwork, copper enameling, modeling in clay, and stencilling.

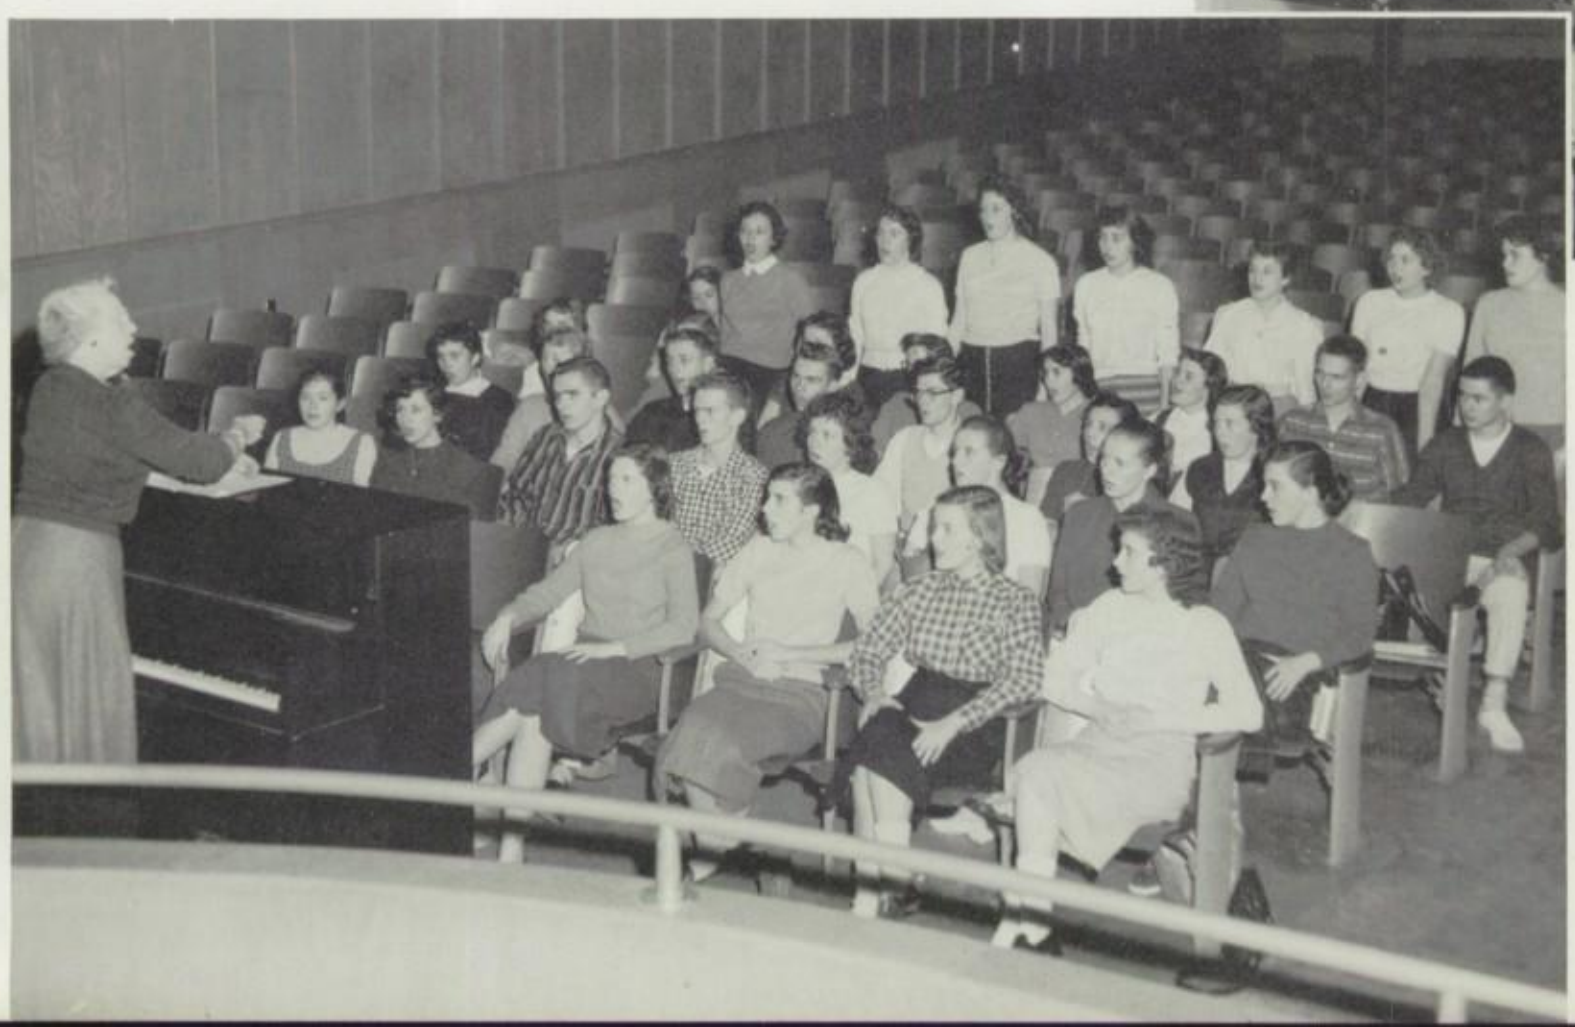
In the stimulating atmosphere of brushes and water paints with the scent of fresh oils in the air, students struggle to develop their natural artistic abilities while Mr. Rittman aids them with his expert criticism.

Assisting one of his better young artists, Mr. Rittman carefully evaluates Barbara Alberigo's latest artistic feats.

After many hours of molding, sanding down, and finally painting her ceramic jar, a student receives instructions from Mr. Doley on the correct method of firing in the kiln.

Here is the illustrious Warwick Band whose melodious strains have reached as far as Montreal. Faithfully attending daily practice, members of the band, under the direction of Dr. Wiggin, receive the necessary instruction and guidance to participate in the various concerts, parades, festivals, and other appearances throughout the year.

In the practice room, Richard Cohen and Ronald Amaral are really "blowing up a storm." By attending the many practices, they are really becoming loyal and contributing parts of the organization.



These students, members of the senior chorus, rehearse during class time the numbers they will sing for assemblies and social events in which they participate during the year. Instructed by Miss Willard, they learn how to control their voices, be at ease before an audience, and interpret the mood of the music.

To aid students in solving their problems and in making adjustments to their approaching adulthood

Searching for the ideal college or the best position, Patricia Burke and Corinne Flamand find that the guidance library is an asset which aids them in making important decisions.

Part of the program of group guidance is the administering of group tests. Mr. Morry administers the Differential Aptitude Test battery to a class after which students will discuss and chart their results.

When a student's problem is too important or too personal to be discussed in a group guidance class, a private interview is held with his counselor. Here Miss Conlin aids a senior toward a decision the student must make.

A student desirous of a part-time position consults Mr. Lavery, Business-Industry Coordinator, who will inform him of an opening. In addition to this service, Mr. Lavery is helping to develop a program of on-the-job training in the business and industrial field.

Providing the counselor with continuous and frequent contacts with students so that he may better understand them is the purpose of group guidance. Mr. Riley's class discuss problems which are common to all and gain the experience of sharing ideas and of becoming tolerant of the views of others.

As Social Coordinator, Marianna Willard plans a schedule of all activities to take place during the school year. Sponsors of all extra-curricular activities consult the social calendar before arranging any program for their groups.

Offered for one-half year, this class is composed of successive units dealing with the growth and care of children. Running parallel with this class is a nursery school where students observe children's behavior and practice techniques learned beforehand.

To provide a basis for

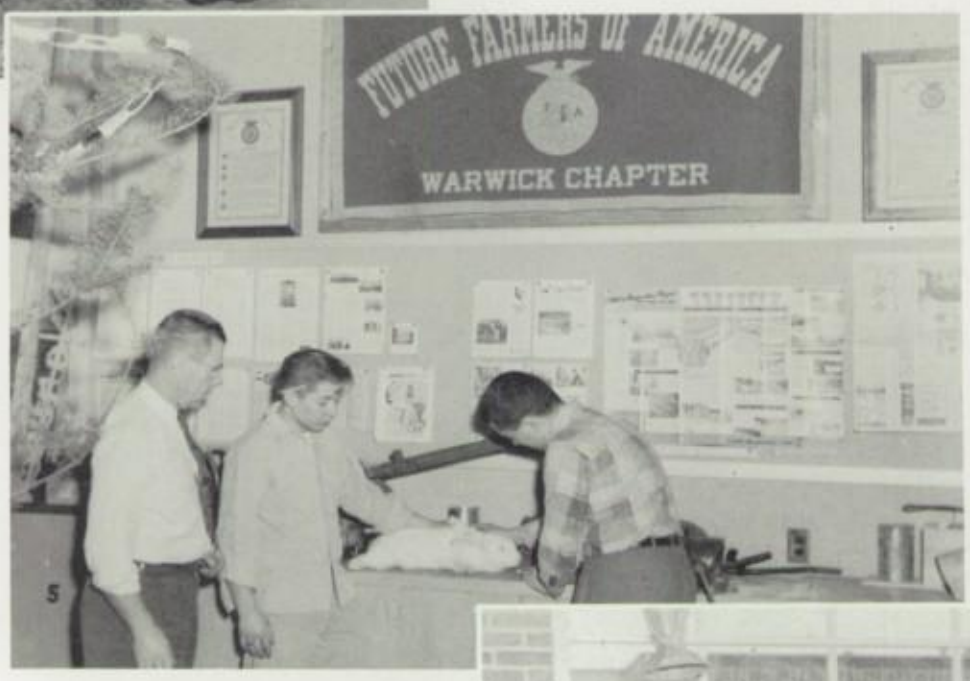
As members of the Special Interests class, Dorothy Rapson and Bette Wood have worked out an outline of the phases of homemaking upon which they want to concentrate. They are now completing their sewing projects for this term.

Mrs. Mayor teaches her boys the fundamental steps of cooking and entertaining. These boys are making a practical application of the final step in cooking a meal — cleaning up the kitchen.

If they have taken a variety of homemaking courses during the tenth and eleventh grades, senior girls are eligible to enter the advanced course which deals with special interests. Catherine Robertson, Carol Nason, Mrs. Lewis, and Leola Fuller break their prearranged schedule in their chosen fields to make table displays for their homes during the Christmas season.

Bruce MacNeil and Charles Greaves are repairing a tractor in class in order to become familiar with and develop skills in electricity and metals which is the practical purpose of the Farm Mechanics program. Thus, they are able to handle the more common jobs encountered in farming.

Students of this course cover the various phases of agriculture as they are applied and practiced locally and in other sections of New England. There are opportunities for employment in farming or related industries, as well as going into the practical aspect of farming.



Under the supervision of Mr. Minard Price, the boys learn about many phases of horticulture. Here Mr. Price is explaining the growth of a geranium to William Thomas.

the better living of tomorrow

As Christmas approached, members of Mr. Price's classes began making wreaths which they used as home decorations. In the senior agriculture class the boys may specialize in any phase of agriculture which they have previously studied. Research reading and periodic reports are done by the student.

To offer unlimited sources of pleasurable reading and intensive research

Here in the quiet atmosphere of the library, pupils are able to study or indulge in recreational reading. Mrs. Price and Mrs. Eaton are always on hand to assist students in their selection of reference books or novels.

Mrs. Price, librarian, and Mrs. Eaton, assistant to the librarian, check out books to Sandra Smith and Barbara Smith who are interested in extra reading. This is only one of the many tasks they perform daily.

Here in the library book room, Mrs. Price after checking the Readers' Guide to Periodical Literature, finds a back issue for a student doing research work. This book room is an excellent source of periodic information.

In a quiet corner of the library these students do some reading for relaxation. The library is well supplied with books for pleasurable reading and research work.

To study the procedures of courteous and careful driving

In order to gain the vital knowledge necessary for safe driving as well as applying this knowledge on the road, these students elected Driver Education. The students are using an instrument supplied by the American Automobile Association which tests their visual judgment on the road.

Having obtained a mechanical knowledge of the automobile and having memorized the rules of the highway, the students leave the classroom to take turns behind the wheel of the driver-training car to gain skill in actual driving.

The clinic is an integral part of the school; students and teachers alike see Mrs. Lundin for an on-the-spot remedy. Mrs. Curry, Supervisor of the Warwick school nurses and Dr. Joseph T. Barrett discuss problems they encounter each day.

To maintain an efficient and well-organized building

The seniors owe Mrs. Salmon a debt of gratitude, for she willingly does many transcripts of grades that are sent to colleges and industries, as well as handling Mr. Scott's personal correspondence. Mrs. Salmon also aids in the registration of night school students and in general helps the program to succeed.

Mr. LaBonte, head custodian, stands between two 150 horsepower boilers which are capable of consuming 256 gallons of fuel an hour. There are emergency power facilities to provide a minimum of heat and light needed for the building. To aid him with the maintenance is a staff of twelve janitors.

Mrs. Gray, Mrs. Keyes, Mrs. Whitford, and Mrs. Paquin, who comprise our capable and reliable office staff, are responsible for the never-ending task of providing an efficient office system to serve the faculty and student body.

Every day approximately three hundred calls are handled by Mrs. Gray. From the main switchboard in the office run four trunk lines from which are twenty-three extensions. She also operates the intercommunication system that has ninety stations; any part of the school can be reached.

To serve well-balanced meals for a healthy society

Through the service window leading from the kitchen to the teachers' cafeteria, Mrs. Soule serves Miss Wheeler, the dietician, a cup of tea while Mrs. Marland, her assistant, looks on. During the day, most teachers find this an ideal place for a coffee break during a free period.

Because of his interest in restaurant work, John Merrill, experiencing on-the-job training, became a part of the cafeteria force for a few weeks. He helps Joe Tetrault and Mrs. Patullo with an enormous task which is simplified by the aid of an electric dishwasher.

Many cooks, in this case Mrs. Silva, Mrs. Brown, and Mrs. Peterson, do not spoil the broth. Each day approximately five hundred fifty students are fed a nourishing, well-balanced meal. Menus, ranging from a full-course turkey dinner to delicious pizza, are prepared by the efficient cafeteria staff.

Mrs. Reid prepares the menu for the day's luncheon as Mrs. Stetson and Mrs. Fielder await the flood of boys and girls who will stampede into the cafeteria for their lunches.

The plates and trays are being set up for the students who will soon appear. Each day, 1,500 half-pints of milk are sold, in addition to 700 ice creams. Miss Palmer, Mrs. Craig, Mrs. St. Dennis, and Mrs. Kavanaugh work together to help the cafeteria operate efficiently.

In our friendships...

...for, in giving ourselves, we may receive in greater measure the happiness we seek.

Class of 1959

Already well-acquainted, the juniors began this year with many new friends and activities. The long, cold winter was interrupted by a gay Valentine's Dance, the Sweetheart Hop. The Junior Prom climaxed the year, leaving the class anxiously awaiting the year to come.

Class of 1960

In order that the sophomores might become better acquainted, their advisors thought it wise to postpone class elections until February. Many students showed such an interest in class government that there were thirty-five candidates in the primaries. We hope that their interest and enthusiasm will continue.

Beginning a discussion of current controversial topics are William Larson, Elizabeth MacNaught, and Flan Pilkenton.

I. R. C.

Working directly with the World Affairs Council, the International Relations Club climaxed its activities of the year by its participation in United Nations Day held at the State House. Many hours are spent seeking an interesting and suitable topic for presentation at the event. Flan Pilkenton, Margery Coldwell and William Peotrowski have appeared on WJAR radio in a discussion on world affairs.

Mr. McLean and the officers of I. R. C. survey the world situation: John O'Neill, President; Flan Pilkenton, Treasurer; Fred Hone, Vice-President; Margery Coldwell, Secretary.

The flags of the United Nations seem to symbolize the group's interest in world affairs.
Seated: William Peotrowski and Barbara Fucci.
Standing: Harvey Fink, Mr. McLean, John O'Neill, and Fred Hone.

HI-Y

The Hi-Y is one of the most prominent and most active of the various service organizations of the high school. Their activities are varied and numerous: serving as volunteers at the Lakeside Home, cleaning local libraries, and working at Camp Okwinesset, the district Y camp. Selling "Varsity Rats," school emblems, and candy has enabled them to contribute fifty dollars to the Scholarship Fund. They have been instrumental in the organization of a Hi-y Canteen at the Warwick Y.M.C.A.

The officers of the Hi-Y seem proud of the accomplishments of their organization: Alan Volkman, Secretary; Mr. Hoffman, Advisor; Gerry Wetzel, President; Stephen Warren, Sergeant-at-Arms; David Hartman, Treasurer; Samuel Hopp, Chaplain.

David Hartman, Stephen Warren, and Samuel Hopp eagerly seek customers for their "Varsity Rats."

President Gerry Wetzel discusses profits from sale of "Varsity Rats" with his membership: Stephen Warren, Samuel Hopp, Duncan Bill, Peter Sandmann, Earl Tillinghast, Russell McKenna, Anthony Brazel, Michael Gerald, David Hartman, Thomas Soule, Bruce Bockstael, Alan Volkman.

This has gone on for hours, but Walter Gustafson is finally ready to move his pawn as Daniel Taylor watches with apprehension.

Chess Club

Highly intent on a serious game, the members of the Chess Club participate in a gentlemen's sport which has endured through centuries. A highly pleasurable game, chess provides many hours of productive relaxation. This year's group became our first team to participate in the Interscholastic Chess Meet in New England, and Dan Taylor copped honors by placing third in the Rhode Island Junior Championships.

Mr. Riley is astounded over an obvious meeting of the minds. Rapt attention is shown by Donald Dumaine, Daniel Taylor, and Thomas Gosselin as Ralph Daniels smugly watches the board. Richard Young, Benjamin Greco, and Walter Gustafson are too attentive to even sit through the proceedings.

James Dann has joined the group as two matches are now in progress. Walter Gustafson and Ben Greco lean comfortably as James Dann, Richard Young, Daniel Taylor, Mr. Riley, and Ralph Daniels face the opposition.

Rifle Club

Requiring much skill and accuracy as well as steadiness and responsibility is the Rifle Club under the direction of Mr. Pernaveau. Students are not only instructed in the use of the rifle, but also in its care. Regular meets have been held at the Varnum Armory in East Greenwich at which students are able to put their skill and knowledge into practice.

Although girls are in the minority in the Rifle Club, they have often proved to be the better marksmen. Mr. Pernaveau cocks a rifle for Armena Saroian, Judith Speel, Judith Cunniff, Lynn McCaughery, and Maria Amaru.

The oiling and cleaning of rifle are most important as members take careful note.

If anyone lurks in the D wing corridor, they may find that a moving target is not so hard to hit. Daniel Dumaine, Daniel Dromgoole, Albert Cote, and Thomas Gosselin prepare to fire. What, no ammunition?

In our leaders...

... who have fulfilled in faithful service the trust thus placed in them.

Student Council

As governing body of Warwick High, the Student Council operates under a special constitution which enables it to enact and carry out various laws and rules concerning the welfare of all students. Membership is comprised of delegates who are elected to represent their respective homerooms. Several standing committees have been established, such as the election committee, which conducts all school elections; health and safety, which determines rules governing the physical well-being of students; ways and means, which carries out all proposed legislation. The recently established Student Traffic Court is one of the most important organizations instituted by the Council.

One of the most important groups in the high school is the Student Council represented by: Mr. Saute, Advisor; Judith Jones, Vice-President; Brian Dutra, President; Joan Souther, Treasurer; Mary Boylan, Secretary.

Selling candy has proved to be a profitable source of income for Student Council. In the main lobby after school, Susan McAllister, Nancy Bloom, and Karen Hoffman try to satisfy hungry customers.

Brian Dutra has the rapt attention of all Student Council members as he introduces the plan for a Traffic Court for discussion. As governing body of the school with an elected membership, Student Council must weigh the merits and draw thoughtful conclusion of all legislation.

Interest and cooperation of city officials in planning and programs for the high school are shown here as Police Chief Forrest R. Sprague addresses the Traffic Court Committee to offer constructive advice: Elsie Arsenault, Mr. Saute, Judy Jones, Brian Dutra, Judith McMillin, Carol Hirschen, Richmond Alexander.

The fate of all prospective candidates for class office rests in the hands of these members of the Student Council Election Committee. Beginning with the issuance of Declarations of Intent straight through to the announcement of final winners, its members are involved in the exciting, though often tiresome, duties designated to the committee.
Seated: Mary Truhan.

The Gryphon

Operating on a $6,000 budget, the editors and staff of the 1958 GRYPHON have worked diligently to produce a yearbook different in every respect — size, cover, content, and layout — from those of previous years. After attending the Columbia National Scholastic Press Association Conference, of which the GRYPHON is a member, in New York in October, the staff returned with fresh, unique ideas and an exhilarating enthusiasm to begin work. "Midnight Meetings," so termed by an oft-exhausted and harried staff, marked the many months of earnest preparation, resulting in a revolutionary yearbook which will be valued in the years to come, both as a record of 1958 and as the first book of its kind in Warwick.

Herald photographers Fred Hone and John O'Neill photograph staff members: Joseph Scowcroft, James Dolan, Lois Nyberg, Thomas Gosselin, and Ralph Daniels.

Cynthia Mattson, Bruce Bockstael, Virginia Latham, and Carol Wilbur of the Circulation Staff are enthusiastic over the sales of the Herald.

Hurricane Herald

Collecting news, meeting deadlines, and literally pasting together the paper were only a few of the duties of the staff of the Hurricane Herald. The monthly paper contained several new slants, among them the highly successful "Hurricane's Eye" which spotlighted each month four students prominent in school activities. Staff members were ably assisted by members of the Cub Club who helped gather news. Several members attended the Columbia Press Conference in New York in March which provided them with many new ideas for next year's Herald.

To Achieve

Future Farmers of America

Our tables may someday be laden with produce grown or raised by present members of the Future Farmers of America. In addition to the cultivation of over an acre of land placed at the disposal of the Agriculture classes, members work on individual projects, such as soil, plants, and poultry. Several joint projects were also carried out in the course of the year, such as making wreaths and sprays for Christmas, dressing poultry, and cutting and potting geraniums.

Future Teachers of America plan their next project, a tea for parents and teachers held in April.

Future Teachers of America

These Future Teachers have become completely absorbed in their future career, having begun with a carefully planned program by Miss Ross. They have observed classes in the elementary schools, in Lockwood Junior High School, and at Henry Barnard School, the laboratory school of R. I. C. E. The next step is planning a lesson and teaching it, as they have done within their own group and in elementary classes. They have done service to the community with a Christmas party for the children at Exeter School and a St. Patrick's Day party at the Lakeside Home. Their future plans include an exchange program with Coventry Future Teachers and a visit to the R. I. School for the Deaf.

One small phase of teaching is keeping an attractive room. Setting up the bulletin board in Miss Ross's room are Nancy Breitstein, Shirley Johnson, Lorita Fiorino, Charlotte Docekel, and Clarence Thomas.

Officers of the Science Club, John McCabe, Daniel Taylor, Ernest Lucier, and Advisor, Mr. Rohloff seem to approve of the large and vital membership of their group.

Science Club

During the year, the students in this organization plodded together gathering information connected with their own special interests. Later in the year these were developed into the nucleus of their entry into the Rhode Island Science Fair. From the Science Workshop at Brown University, they were able to derive more useful information. After meeting and competing with people from all over the state, Warwick had won many first grants and gained an insight into the scientific world of today.

Electronics Club

The main objectives of the Electronics Club are to cultivate the interests and develop the ideas of tomorrow's scientists. Here, the boys have an opportunity to perform experiments in any branch of electronics with guidance from Mr. McKeon. From the skills acquired here, the boys are better equipped to take their place in a rapidly expanding world.

Slide Rule Club

The Slide Rule Club, whose aim is attaining skill in the use of the instrument, is made up of two groups: The Slide Rule Club of the tenth graders, and Essarcees, the advanced group of mostly juniors. At Open-House in November, the Essarcees startled parents by instructing them in the use of the slide rule. Miss Colvin's group is not only instructional but social, for they have a bowling group and have held picnics for informal get-togethers.

Assembled in front of the attractive bulletin board displaying the uses of the slide rule are: D. Mischke, W. Gibson, P. Skene, A. Volkman, Miss Colvin, L. Smith, W. Lang, V. Gibeault.

Displaying their slide rules as a symbol of their group are the officers of the Essarcees: Linwood Smith, President; Carole Lundgren, Secretary; Miss Colvin, Advisor; Donald Mischke, Treasurer; Patricia Skene, Vice-President; Leona Smith, Program Chairman.

Home Economics Club

In the attractive, modern atmosphere of well-equipped rooms members of the Home Economics Club initiate and practice ideas for home management. Operating under a point system, these girls undertake many community, church, and home projects in an effort to merit one of the special awards given at the end of each year. One of these projects, a good, old-fashioned Bake-Off, inspired active participation.

Teens in White

These future nurses have gone beyond the usual range of club activities, guest speakers, and food sales to be of real assistance, both in school and in the community. As their annual Christmas project, the girls adopted a family of seven whom they supplied with food, a tree, and gifts. Many study periods have been devoted to working in the clinic where the girls efficiently assist Mrs. Lundin in filing and recording information on health cards. In addition to this, the girls have served as auxiliary workers in clinics and hospitals.

Mrs. Marian Lundin, R.N., and Mrs. Price, Advisors, join the officers of Teens-in-White: Gretchen Craig, President; Mary Hamilton, Program Chairman; Carol Enos, Secretary; Susan Smith, Vice-President; and Judith Moulton, Treasurer. Gretchen holds the Florence Nightingale Lamp which symbolizes their ultimate goal.

As Future Nurses look on, Gwendolyn Randall, Betsy Bradbury, and Helen Robinson help Mrs. Price and Mrs. Lundin in cutting blankets which are used in First Aid Kits.

To Entertain

Carolyn White and Allen Lawton, two hopefuls, try out for the Senior Play.

"Cheaper by the Dozen," from the hilarious book by Frank B. Gilbreth and Ernestine Carey, harks back to the days of the middy blouses, short skirts, and the Stanley Steamer. Jack Nichols, as Mr. Gilbreth, an efficiency expert and the father of twelve children, introduces his "efficient" method into the training of his brood. In hilarious scenes, he exhibits the art of taking a bath with no waste of time and motion; demonstrates the appreciation of Democracy by ignoring the suggestions of the "family council; ignores the pleas of his daughters in their desires for femininity by decrying the "teddy." Gail Williams, as the mother, somehow finds that children are "Cheaper by the Dozen."

Miss Kemalian, director of the Senior Play, gives a helpful hint for the arrangement of stage props.

"Really, Dad, just everybody wears them now-a-days!"

Vivid scarlet capes against billowy white gowns provide a lovely setting for a Queen's Court. As Queen Joan Iavarone presides, her court surrounds the throne: Jerilyn Silva, Jean Fiddes, Roberta Johnson, Carolyn White, Jane Genever, and Barbara Jacques.

Mr. DeRoin conducts as the entire cast sings "White Christmas" and sends Christmas Greetings to an appreciative audience.

"He went thataway" Virginia Anderson seems to say as her rendition of "I Can't Say No" proved to be the highlight of the evening.

Three native girls, Barbara Loud, Laurel Houle, and Constance Dwyer, in fitting costume and effective lighting, sing "Bali Hai" from "South Pacific."

Musical Revue

The Musical Revue, long heralded and long awaited social event of the year was the musical highlight of the season. Familiar tunes from famous Broadway musicals and from the nostalgic era of the "Roaring Twenties," delighted a vast audience of Warwickites. Dance ensembles, vocal groups, and solo numbers were presented against elaborate settings of the Manhattan skyline. A proud Statue of Liberty dominated the scene of the Queen's Court as Miss Willard, with the aid of Mr. Rittman and Mr. DeRoin, realized another successful program.

revive the era of the "Roaring Twenties."

Direct from Radio City Music Hall in New York, the Warwick unit of the Rockettes, directed by Miss Bailey, presents a spectacular precision line.

No musical revue is complete without a lively "Can-Can" number. Led by Gene Kopf and George Low, the graceful senior boys present Part II of the lively dance, which will undoubtedly set the "Can-Can" back one hundred years.

Thespians

The Thespians, revived this year under the direction of Miss Kemalian, gained an added burst of ambition after attending the Drama Workshop at the University of Rhode Island. From this, they gained new ideas for sponsoring the annual One-Act Play competition and the State Competition Play which would emerge under the direction of Miss Petrella.

The officers of the Thespians and Miss Kemalian look over new plays and pass opinions on "Cheaper by the Dozen" which was to be the choice for the Senior Play. Paul Hargraves, Vernon Gould, and Loril Oxley beam with approval with Miss Kemalian and Co-Presidents Susan Heery and Jo Ann Madeiros.

Jo Ann Madeiros patiently allows Gail Allard to apply the art of stage makeup which had been demonstrated by Mr. Hoffman at a meeting of the Thespians.

Ralph Daniels seems dubious as he inspects the costumes which are at the disposal of the Thespians while Barbara Galli awaits approval.

Priscilla Amend and Deborah Eberle are the pole clappers for Isabel Retzloff and Bernice Archambault who are gaining skill in the Bamboo Dance.

Dance Club

As a highlight of the Dance Club season, a splash party was held at the Park View Junior High Pool. Miss Bailey's group practiced many forms of the dance: folk, square, modern, and tap. Amid much laughter and sometimes hysteria, an awkward group emerged as talented dancers. An old-fashioned hoedown was held in March at which a caller completed the true picture of a square dance.

Janice Carroll, the student director, gives a smile of approval as Valerie Amaru does a creditable job of fainting in Peter Sandman's arms much to the astonishment of Ben Greco and Carol Cargill.

The advisors of the one-act plays — Mr. Smith, Miss Bottone, Miss Wilbur, and Mr. Marinelli — are watching an early rehearsal of "Rise and Shine," the selection of the Senior class for the One-Act Play Competition.

One-Act Plays

On April 18, the One-Act Play Competition, an annual affair, enabled the tenth, eleventh, and twelfth grades to compete against one another. The play presented by the seniors, Rise and Shine, was a humorous fantasy in which the heroine, after being dead one hundred years, discovers that her sweetheart is her own great grandson! A Mad Breakfast, the junior's contribution, was a farce; for a man visits a boarding house, believing it to be a home for the mentally ill; comical situations arise from the various reactions of the boarders.

Dance Band

Although the Dance Band may be called a "service organization" to the school, that is weak terminology to describe a group of young musicians whose dance music is rhythmic, smooth and mellow, or "groovy," and which has served as a background for the Musical Revue and for "Cheaper by the Dozen," the senior play.

Valerie Amaru and Harvey Orleck present a surprised Miss Willard and a stunned Mr. DeRoin with gifts for their long hours of preparation in making the Musical Revue such a success.

An enthusiastic group of musicians — Annette Paquin, Peter MacCaulay, Jack Nichols and Bill Porter — formed a lively combo which was a gay addition to the Valentine Dance.

Can it really be that bad, Mr. DeRoin?
2nd row: R. McKenna, W. Aldrich, J. Dunn, W. Porter, S. Hopp, A. Butzeger.

Band

The W. V. M. H. S. Band has attracted state-wide attention as an outstanding and skilled group under the direction of Dr. Paul Wiggin. Besides participation in city parades on Veterans Day and Memorial Day, and in school assemblies, the band has become an integral part of the International Music Festival at Montreal, the R. I. State Concert Festival, and the New England Solo and Ensemble Festivals. They are active in the Exchange Concert Program with Morrisville, Vermont; Knowton, Canada; Sorel, Canada; and Plattsburg, New York. The band is especially noted for its consistent awards of first division in Class A at audition festivals, the highest recognition a school band can achieve.

Orchestra and Ensemble

When the occasion arises, necessary instrumentation from the band is added for complete orchestra performance. To give students the opportunity to play good chamber music is the aim of the string ensemble. Our string group was organized at the half year to provide an ensemble which offered good string music for outside of school activities as well as for school affairs such as teas, receptions, and the Honors Day assembly.

A. Worthen, J. Gavitt, L. Cooper, D. Green form the string ensemble which performed at Honors Day Assembly.

"Everybody sing!" says Dr. Raymond as he directs the choral workshop.

Senior Chorus

Under the direction of Miss Willard, the senior chorus has become a very active and widely traveled group whose class work serves as a workshop for the Annual Revue and various assemblies throughout the year. They have appeared in concert with our band and the Knowlton, Quebec band on the exchange concert program; have attended the International Music Festival in Montreal; have participated in a concert at Dover, New Hampshire. Soloists and small ensembles from this group, assisted by Mrs. Jonassen, have appeared at P. T. A. meetings and have performed for ratings in the state solo and ensemble auditions. A highlight of the year was a choral workshop and concert, conducted by Dr. John D. Raymond, Director of Music at Lafayette College in Pennsylvania, who is a member of the Fred Waring staff.

These one hundred voices sang during B, C, and E periods.

To Serve

A staggering number of marshals block the photographer's retreat through the main corridor.

Corridor Marshals

Mr. Scott has inaugurated a group of corridor marshals to aid in the general welfare of students and the building. These boys have conducted a well-known patrol, operating under the leadership of captains Henry Gauthier and Stephen Ricci. Each marshal holds his post during period changes in order that the congestion in the corridors may be alleviated. They also check the cafeteria and assist in maintaining order.

Mr. Scott and Henry Gauthier check on conditions in the main lobby as classes pass between periods.

Edward Infantolino, at his post in the D Wing, watches for anyone out of line in passing.

Mary Silvia, Janice Williams, Joan Leahy, and Carol Blais are being given a lesson in the complexities of the card catalogue by Norman Tourgee.

Seldom seen by outsiders is the "back room" of the library, scene of much activity. Moby Dick is processed for circulation by Nancy E. Smith and Carol Passarelli as Mrs. Price shows Brenda Harrison, Patricia Cave, and Jane Taylor how to save a book from extinction by proper pasting and mending.

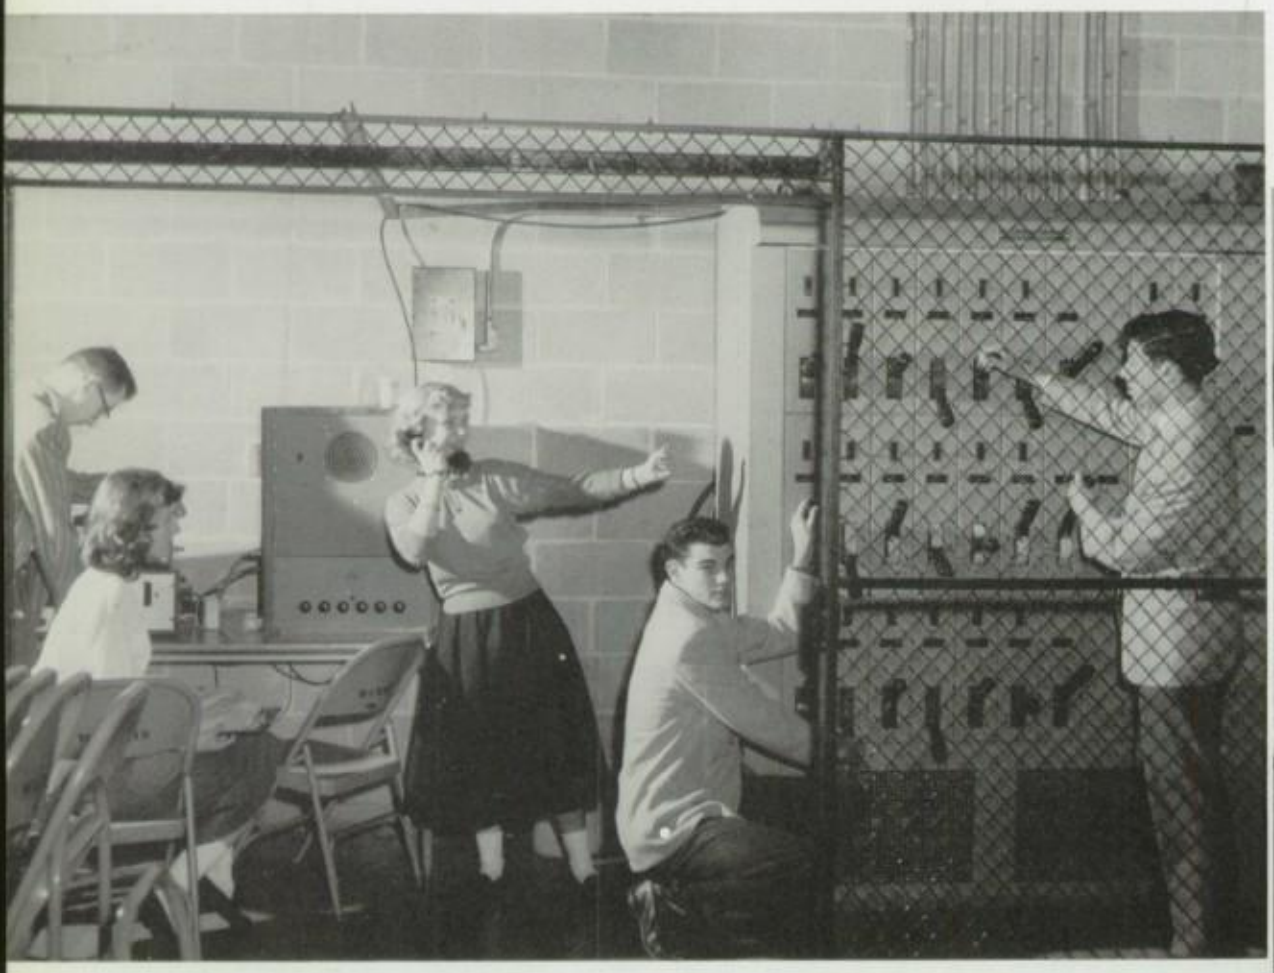
Library Club

Mending and shelving books, keeping the magazine room in order, and checking volumes in and out are only a few of the duties of Library Club members. Operating both before and after school, these students often relinquish study and guidance periods in order to assist the librarians. Members are awarded certificates for their much-needed service at the end of the year.

As Ruth Brown and Joanne Coggswell shelve books, the Library Club poses for the camera.

Showtime, five seconds! William Keane and Lucy Hathaway check the tape recorder; Sue Leighton, in contact with the booth by intercom, signals to William York and Benjamin Greco to bring down the house lights. (Not pictured: Dorothy Rapson and Richard Santos.)

As Peter Pendergast, James Sullivan, and Henry Simpson handle the lady with great care before the Musical Revue, Daniel Taylor, Brian Pendergast, Francis Mahoney, and Richard Phillips assemble the staging for future setting up of scenery. Joan Reardon takes note of what props must go on stage.



Having received the signal from the cage, Joseph Houston and assistant Leon Shatkin set the spot from the booth and the production goes on.

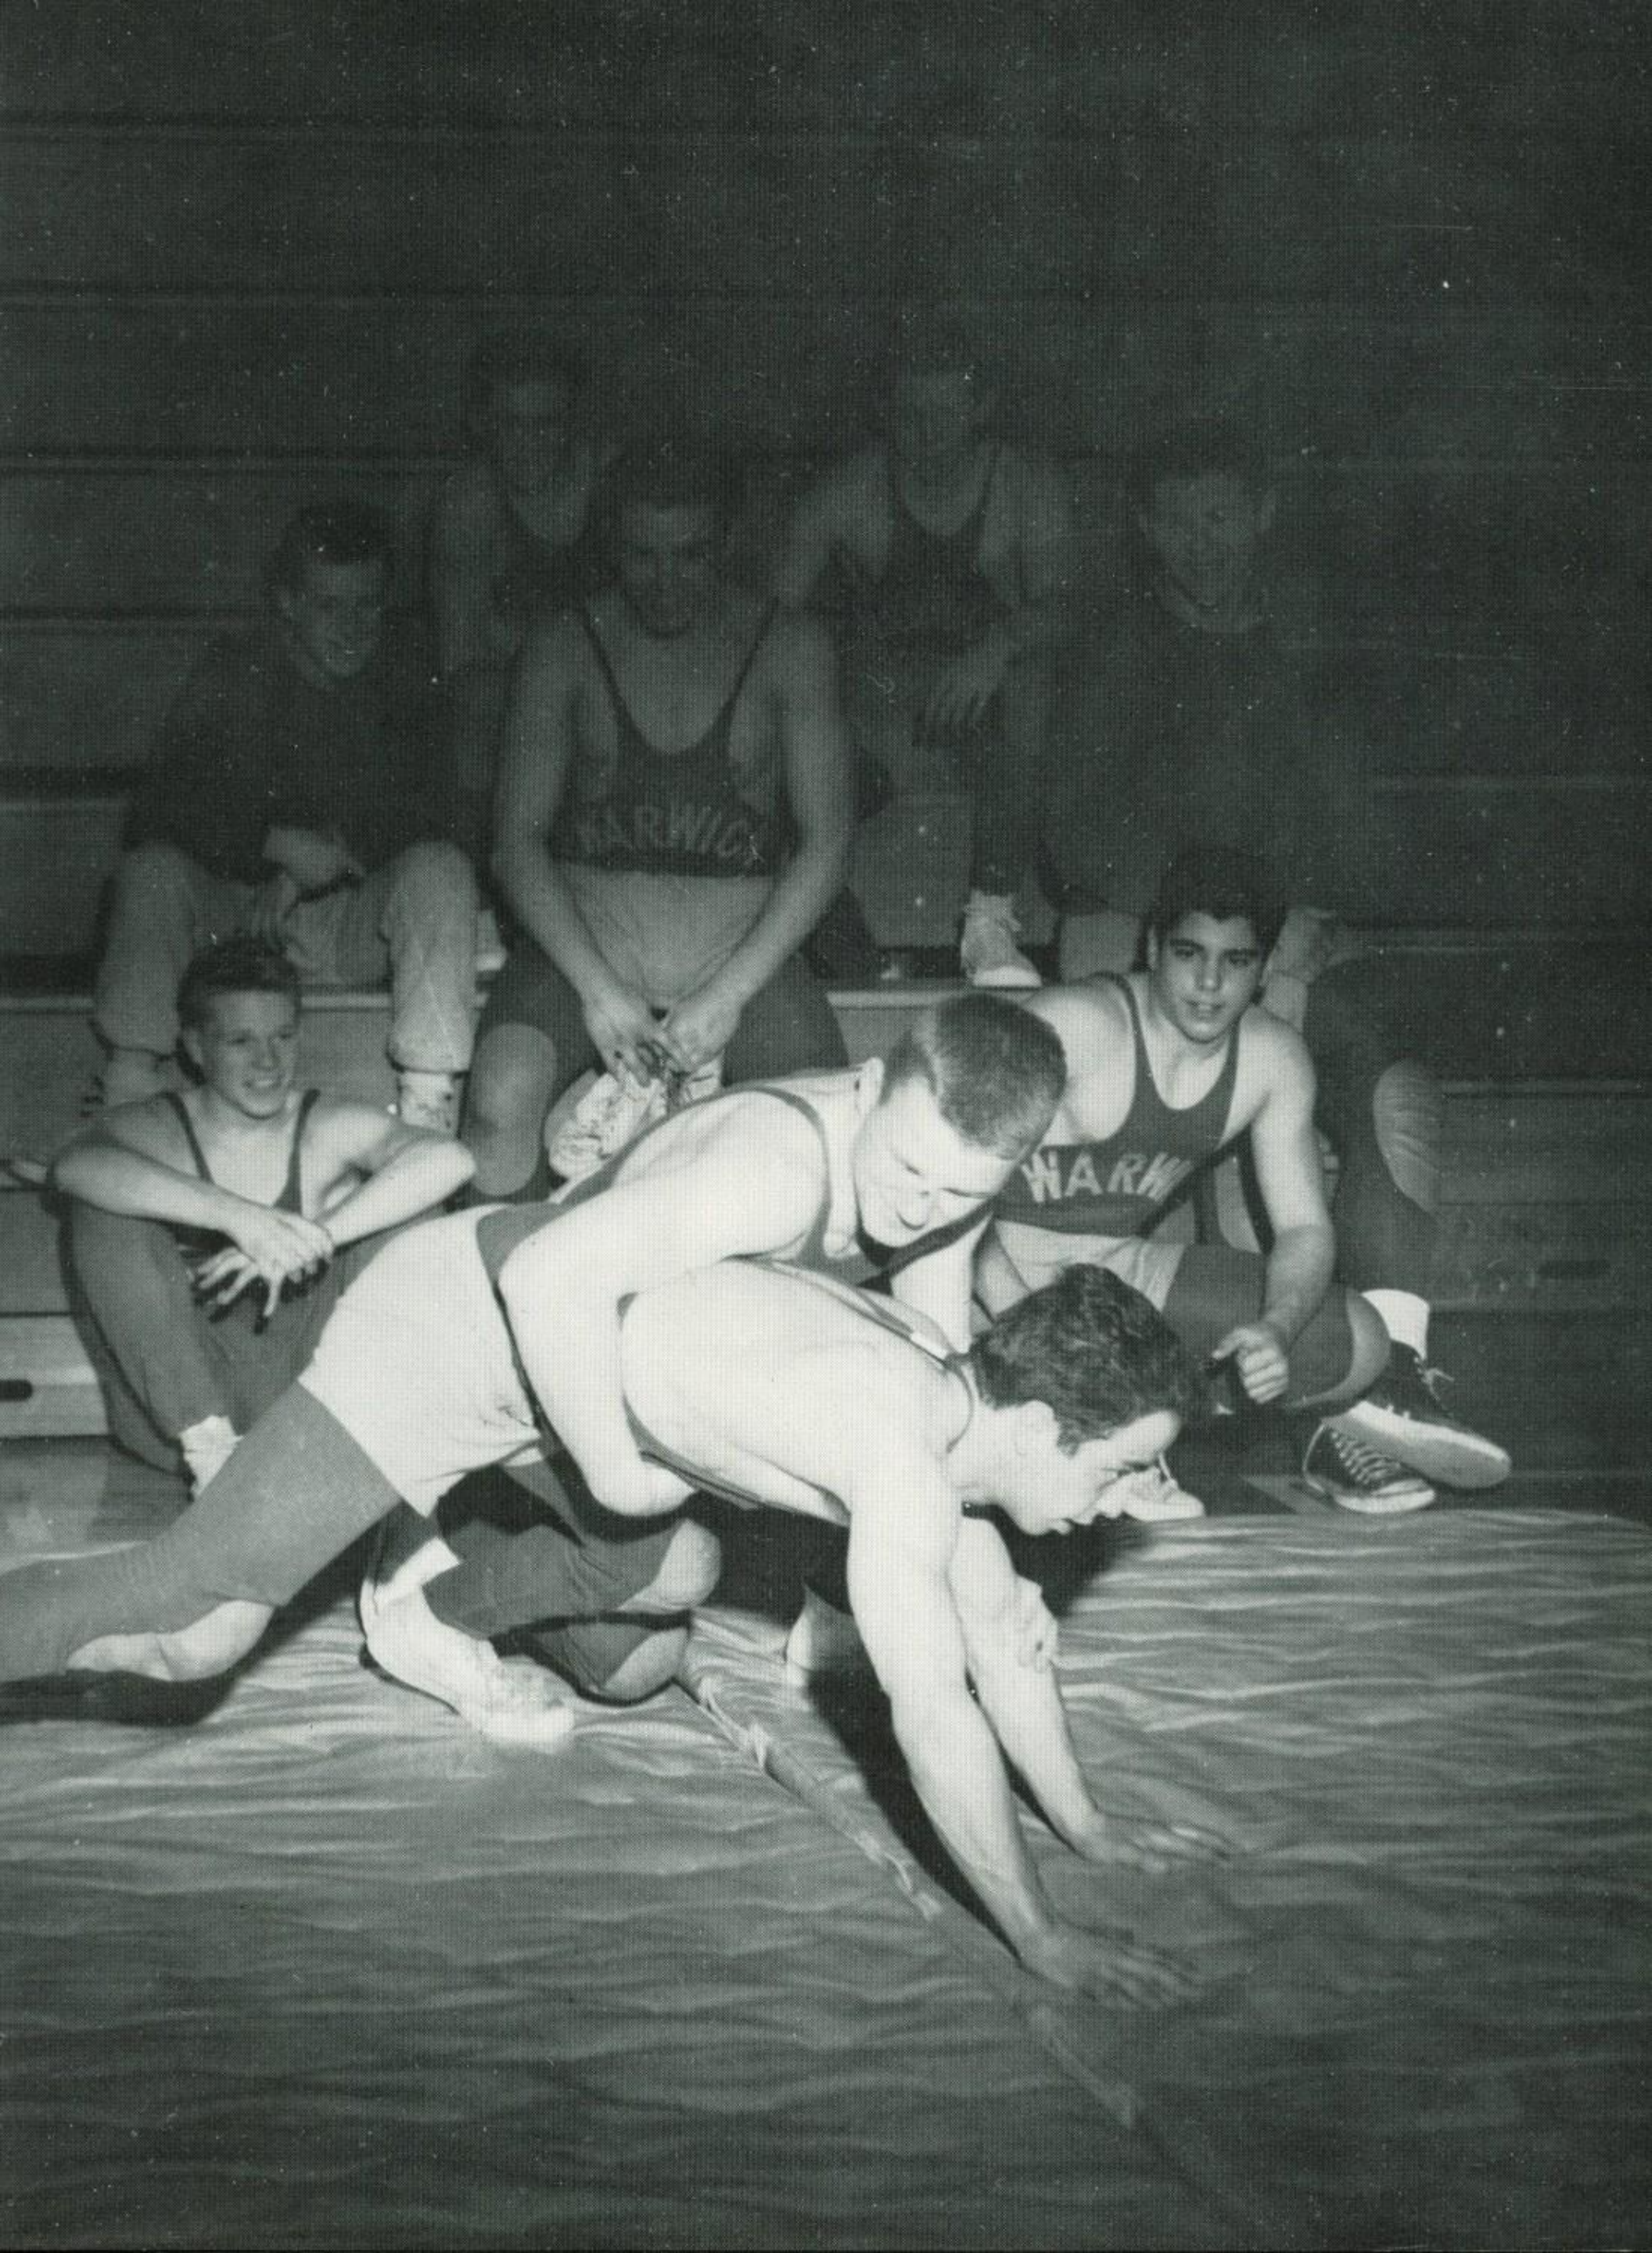
Production Club

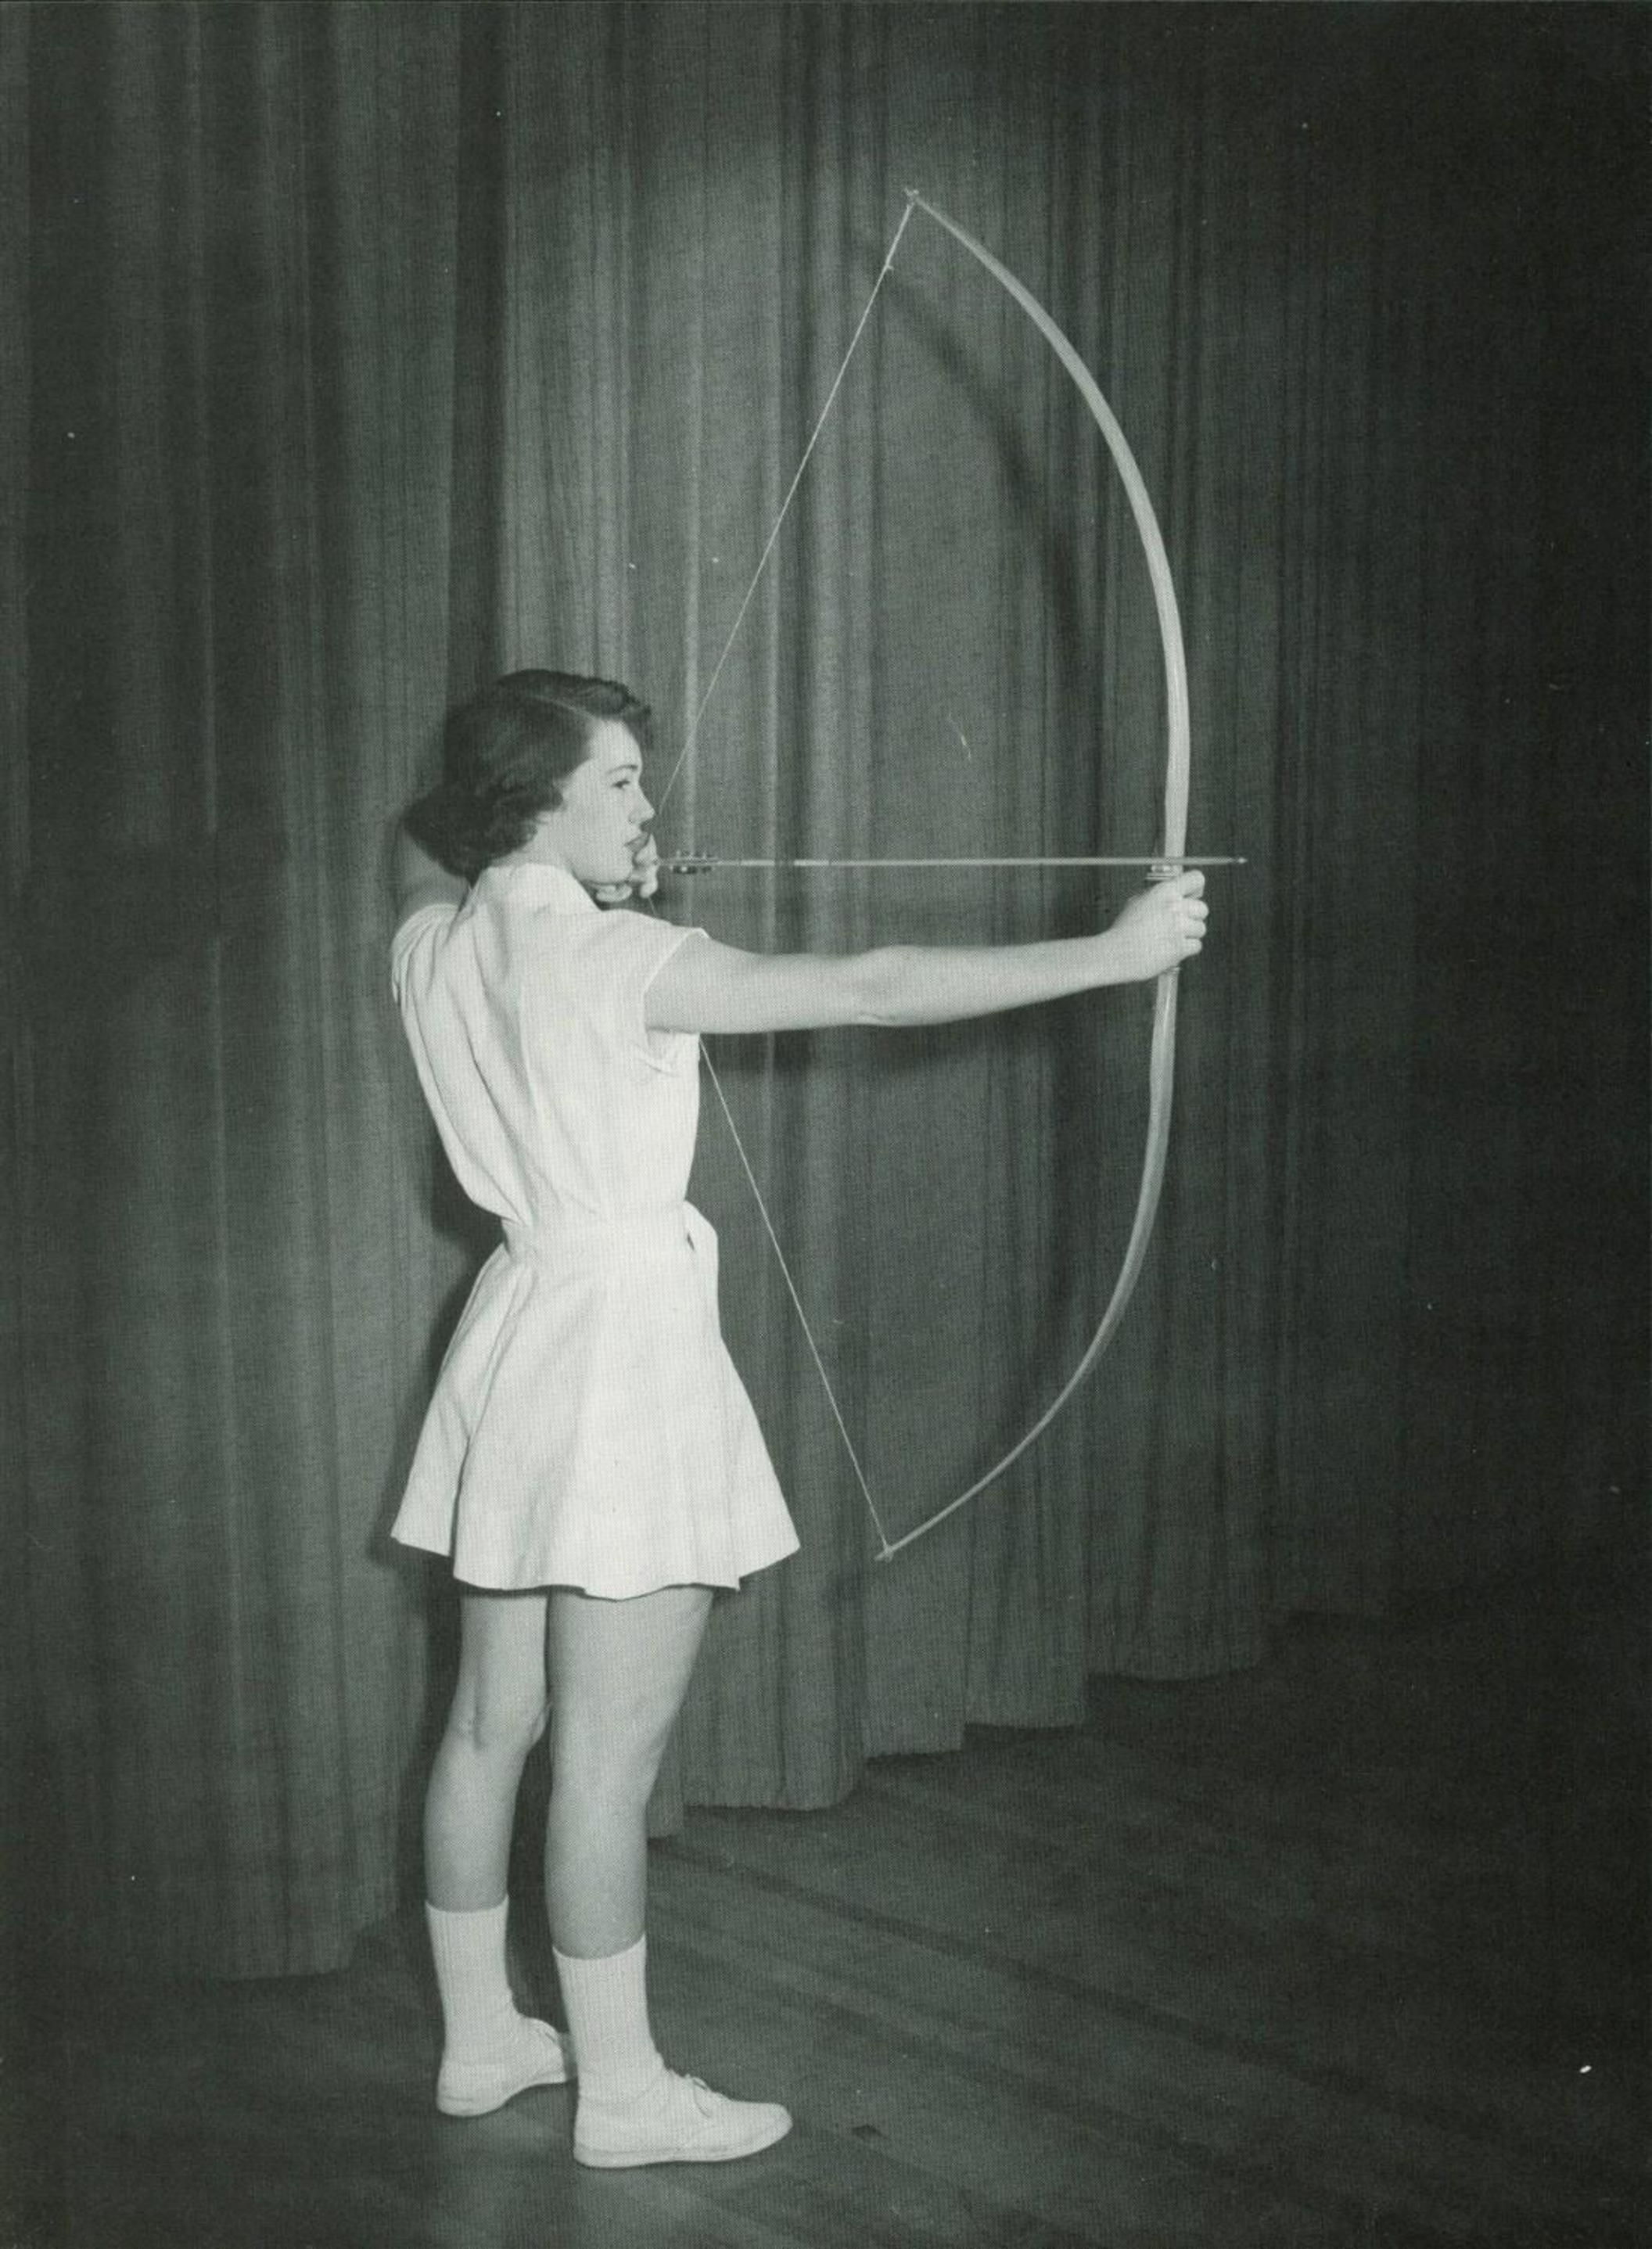
In the maze of backstage equipment, one will discover members of the Production Club struggling to set up props, maneuver lights, and be of general assistance. These unsung heroes of the stage are the technical brains behind all productions, concerts, and assemblies. The Musical Revue is the one program in which the whole club may participate. Under the leadership of Miss Willard, members learn the many technical aspects of a production.

Printing Club

The printing of admission tickets for many school functions is handled by Mr. Taylor and members of his Printing Club. Open to any interested student, this group operates independently, meeting when the need arises. They have been called upon to produce book plates as well as student election posters and campaign buttons, and help revive a lost art, the hand-set type.

After David Schill sets the type for the tickets for the Sweetheart Hop, Richard Santos and Ed Marotta will run the tickets through the press.





In our skills...

...inherent abilities which we can develop through many happy hours of relaxation.

JOHN J. McGIVENEY
Athletic Director

John McGiveney, athletic director of the high school, is no stranger to the field of sports. At the old Warwick High School he was a member of the football, basketball, and track squads, and at Providence College, a pitcher and outfielder in baseball. From college sports he entered semi-pro baseball for the Manufacturers, Pawtuxet Valley, and Providence Leagues. At the beginning of his teaching career, he coached football and basketball at Lockwood High School.

Twenty-five years of teaching and coaching in the Warwick school system has acquainted Mr. McGiveney with all aspects of schoolboy competition. In addition to being in charge of equipment, he also must arrange schedules, handle the sale of tickets and insurance, and take charge of the officials.

A member of the Faculty Directors of Athletics of Rhode Island Secondary Schools and the Athletic Directors Association, Mr. McGiveney is active in schoolboy sports throughout the state and has constant association with other coaches and officials.

VARSITY FOOTBALL

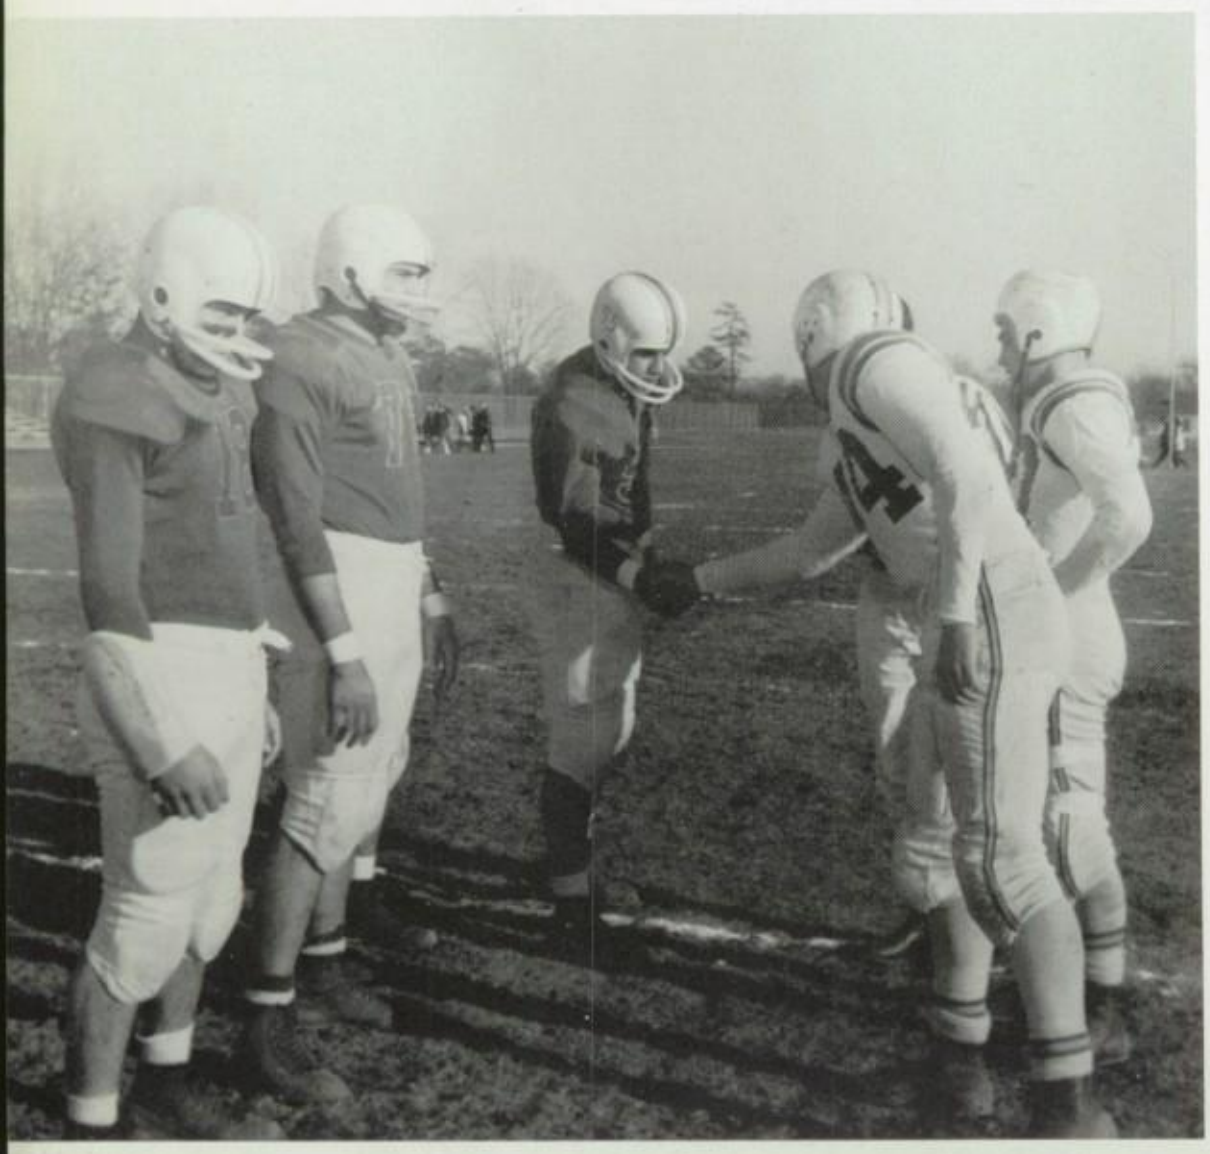
Coach Miller highlights the plays for the next game with a blackboard drill. "Then you take the ball from under your shirt and . . ."



The Hurricanes' 1957 season was the most successful in three years as a class A competition with Co-Captains Ed Murphy and Bob Tillinghast leading the squad to great victories against formidable foes: Cranston, Hope, and Rogers. Special mention should be made of those who made the All-State team, Ed Murphy as defensive back and George Low as end, and of Jim Savage who scored the winning touchdown in our important game with Cranston. Many hours of conditioning, practice, and competition have built a strong team whose next year's men look forward to a real crack at the championship.

Junior Varsity Football

If the record of this year's J.V. football team is any indication of things to come, Coach Miller is sure to have a strong varsity team next year since the J.V.'s were undefeated this season. In spite of the shortened season because of the flu epidemic, Warwick won against such strong opposition as Cranston, LaSalle, East Providence, and North Kingston by their team spirit, ability, and coaching of Mr. Roth and Mr. Shola.

Mr. Roth consults his co-captains, Raymond Allen and Raymond Stone about future games.

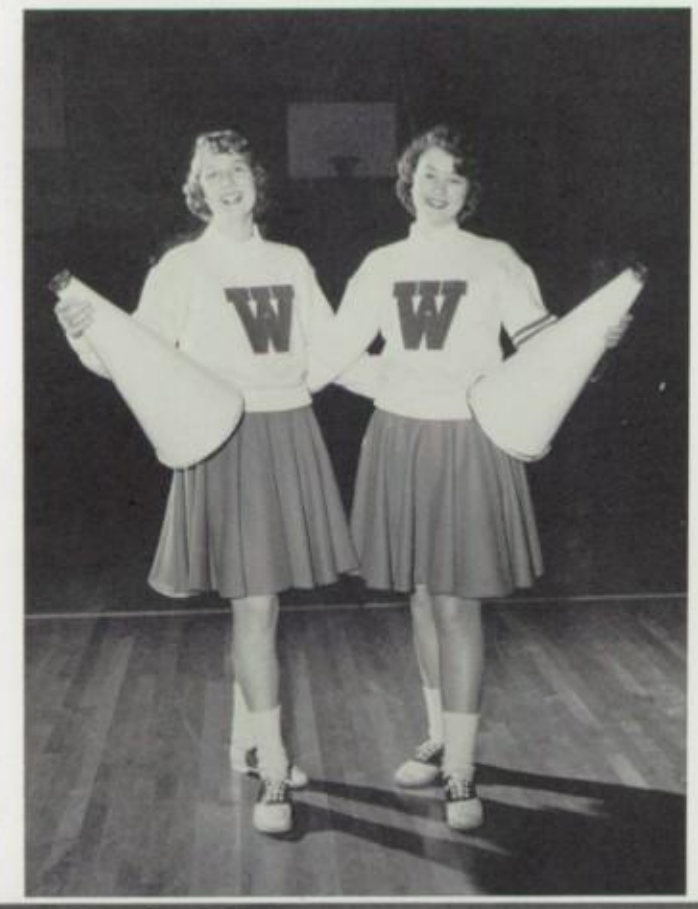
2nd row: V. Miller, P. Amend, C. White, M. Smith, V. Arnold.

Cheerleaders

Warwick's school spirit was given a boost during the football season because of the enthusiasm of the cheerleaders, who were always there to cheer the team.



Mary Lou Smith and Carolyn White, co-captains of the Varsity Football Cheerleaders.

The Varsity Basketball Cheerleaders enthusiastically supported our team, giving loud and peppy yells of encouragement.

L. Plant, K. Carter, J. Iavarone, V. Miller, E. McKeever, M. Smith, G. Williams, C. Flamand.

Virginia Miller and Elaine McKeever, co-captains of the Varsity Basketball Cheerleaders.

Warwick scrambles for the rebound to increase their lead and assure a victory over Mt. Pleasant.

Varsity captain Robert Papa solicits the advice of Coach Hall and manager William Deary.

VARSITY BASKETBALL SQUAD

P. Maresca, F. Corbett, E. Murphy, M. Bell, T. Haley, K. Carlson, E. Galato, R. Choiniere, R. Papa.

A high jump gives Ed Murphy the ball.

Varsity Basketball

Basketball, our major winter sport, combines speed, endurance, and coordination which is an exacting test of a player's skill. Although each man had the will to win, they lacked that certain combination which comprises a winning team.

Individual efforts must be noted in the high scoring of Ken Carlson (145), Ed Murphy (115), Ted Haley (115), and Ed Golato (99).

The results of the Junior Varsity Basketball squad indicate that Coach Hall may look forward to a successful season next year.

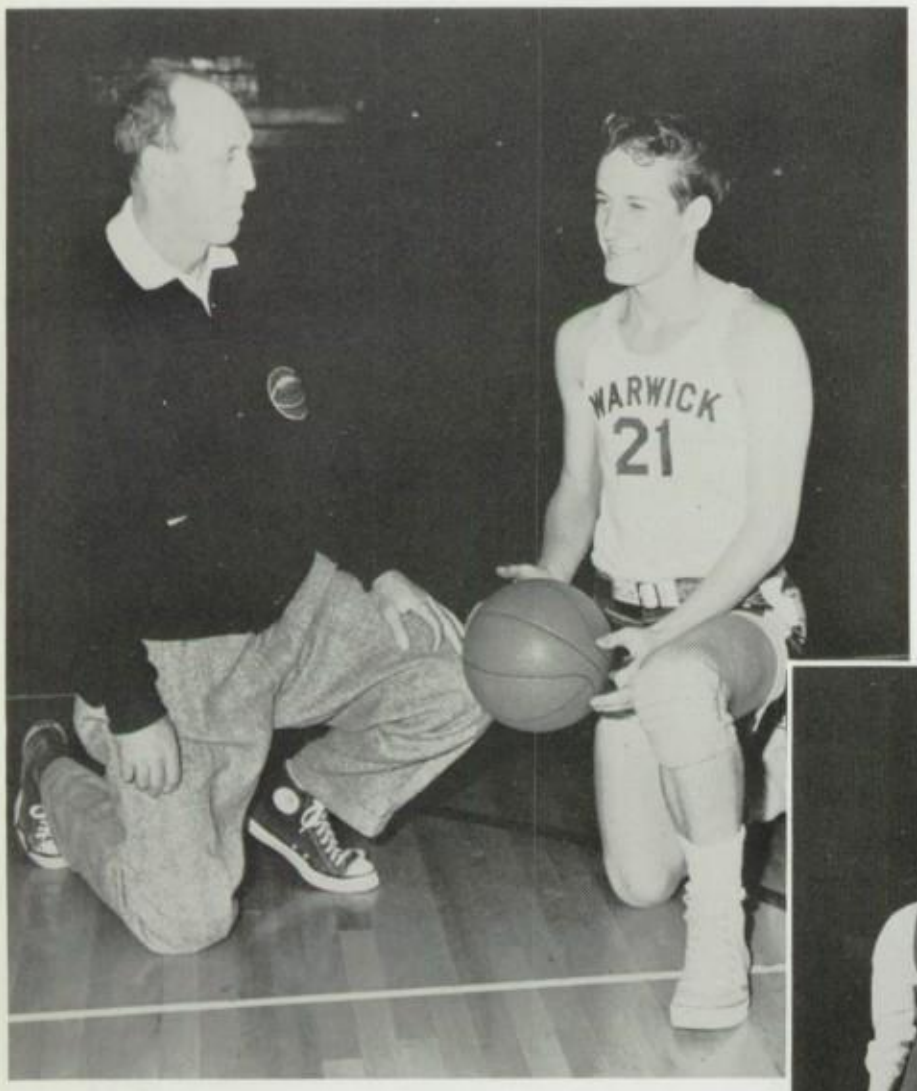
F. Pilkington, P. Mellin, R. Yates, D. Bonn, J. Downs.



Mr. Nordyke and Raymond Kelley discuss some pre-game strategy.

Without a doubt, the success of the Junior Varsity Basketball squad could not have been achieved without the untiring efforts of these sparkling and energetic cheerleaders.

J. Williams, M. Archembault, S. Nordin, J. Souther, C. Mattsen, J. Neal, J. DeCota, B. Tubman.

Junior Varsity Basketball

Coach Nordyke can boast at a successful season with a final record of fifteen wins and four losses. By defeating such strong rivals as Mount Pleasant, Cranston, Central, and LaSalle, the squad exhibited speed, skill, and a strong team spirit. If they continue their fine performance next year, Varsity Basketball can look forward to a healthy season.

Wrestling

Wrestling demands agility, strength, endurance, and a practical knowledge of the techniques of the sport, and the application of such techniques in many hours arduous practice and rigorous training schedule under the unrelenting coaching of Mr. Shola.

This squad holds one of the best performance records of the sports program, having competed in the Brown Interscholastic program with a 3rd place award from a total of eleven teams. Bob Sousa made first string All-State; and John Angell and John Phillips, second string. Again, Sousa won two out of three matches at the N. E. Wrestling Championship, thereby earning a third place award.

On March 5, the team was honored by the Providence Lions Club when Bob Sousa, John Angell, and John Phillips received medals for their achievement. This year's squad, only a second year team, won a total of eleven medals, a tribute to the squad and to Coach Shola.

"Up and Over." Mr. Shola, Robert Sousa, Daniel Taylor.

"Now go for inside switch!" Ernest Lucier, Mr. Shola, Kenneth Rosiak, David Levesque, and Brian Dutra.

Standing: C. Smith, M. Gornasta, G. Pesce, G. Hawcroft, W. Healy, K. Rosiak, G. Kopf, D. Lynch, J. Engstrom, D. Sandmann, E. Wedlock, T. Ruggieri.

Seated: H. Crosby, B. Dutra, J. Angell, D. Taylor, L. West and R. Sousa, Co-Captains; D. Levesque, J. Phillips, R. Mondillo, E. Lucier, C. Forbes.

Cross Country

Cross-Country combines speed with distance (usually 3 to 5 miles), and requires great stamina and strong will-power to excel or even participate in the sport. Every muscle of the body is in play, and fatigue and exhaustion are experienced by every member of the squad.

Coach Johnson's team showed fine performance in a fair season, but felt heartbreaking losses to other schools by very narrow margins. They finished ninth in a field of eighteen teams in the State Championship, and finished fifth at the Class A Championship meet in a field of eight teams. Ed Infantolino and Peter Papadopoulos brought the team a fifth place spot in a field of eighteen teams in the Columbus Day Road Race.

CROSS COUNTRY SQUAD

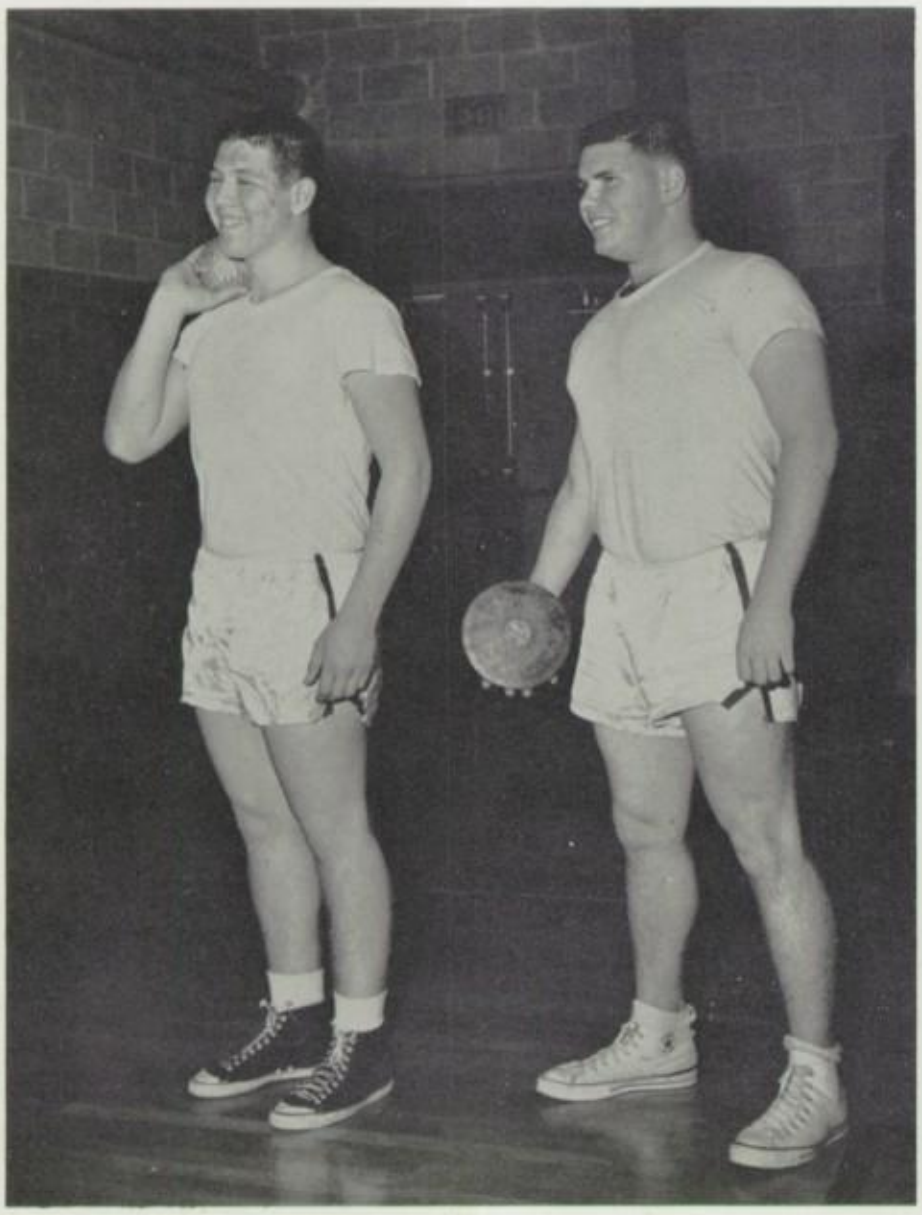
Coach Miller gives Dick Wissler a valuable pointer as Julius Papitto and Earl St. John pay strict attention.

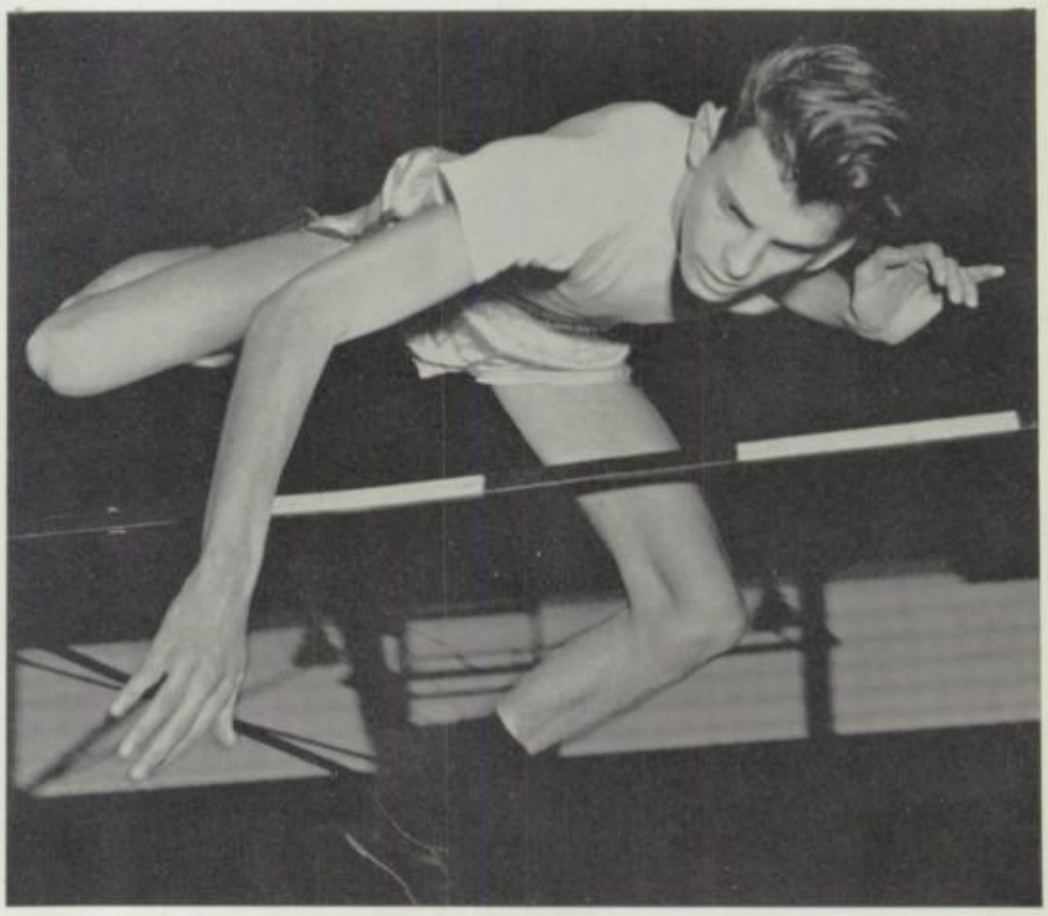
Indoor Track

Indoor Track is composed of nine events, which are the mile run, the high hurdles, the low hurdles, the 1000 and 600 yard runs, the 300 and 400 yard dashes, the high jump, and the shot put. Our team's highest potential seems to be in the dashes and in the 1000 yd. run, as our heaviest scoring was in these areas.

The leading members of the team in points scored were: Carl Olauson (19), Ed Infantolino (15), Dick St. John (14), Don Lynch (14), George Knuetell (11). Although the team will lose several good men this year, we have several promising athletes who will remain and are sure to give a good performance: Don Lynch, shot put; Dick St. John, high jump; Carl Olausen, dash; George Knuetell.



Donald Lynch and Francis Halliwell, the "strong men" in the field, demonstrate their ability with the shot-put and the discuss.



Richard St. John clears the four-foot hurdle with inches to spare.

Just try to get through . . .
the challenge of goalie Steve Healey.

Giving their whole-hearted and enthusiastic support to the team were these peppy cheerleaders.
Shirley Stephens, Barbara Russell, Virginia Anderson, Priscilla Amend, Karen Anderson, Dianne Whitehead, Barbara Alberigo, and Dorothy Corbitt.

1st Row: J. Scowcroft, R. Pride, A. Allenson, H. Orleck, S. Healey, R. Huston, G. Swann, M. Dunn, R. Botts.
2nd Row: Mr. Crawley, D. Carroll, D. Davies, L. Moulton, L. Johnson, R. Johnson, R. Audet, M. Boylan, J. Whitehead, J. LaValley, J. Ridgewell, D. Burns, Ray Sauer, Coach John Hobin.

Coach Crawley gives his boys a short pep talk between periods.

"We're ready for anything" was the enthusiastic spirit of Mike Dunn, Bob Botts, and Jim Whitehead.

Which way . . . wonders Harvey Orleck.

Hockey

Since Hockey is a recent sport in our interscholastic program, it requires five or six seasons to develop a strong team and some sort of farm system to provide an adequate selection of sufficiently experienced players. Coach Crawley is optimistic and sees a bright future for Hockey as one of our leading sports in popularity and in importance.

Although a run-down of the season's scores might seem depressing, the squad has asserted themselves sincerely, and deserve congratulations for such a close record of competition.

It's lined up-now, eye on the ball . . . Tom Shannon, Frank Mahoney, Tom Albies and Milton Tanner are ready to drive that ball 300 yards.

Mr. McKeon adjusts the grip that Tom Shannon has on his club while Frank Mahoney prepares to test his changed grip.

Milton Tanner checks to see that Tom Albies' chip shot is in line with the pin.

Golf

One of the most popular participant sports, golf, requires co-ordination of muscles, eyes, and body which is obtained only through long practice and experience. When played on a team basis, it is highly competitive and an exciting spectator sport. The 1958 team is shaping up to be a very dangerous opponent under its coach, Mr. McKeon.

Tennis

Mr. Rittmann discussed with Dan Taylor, Ray Sauer, Al Cescelius, Steven Hackett, Richard Joly, and Garry Bogue the latest developments in technique and their practical application.

Tennis is an individual sport in which hard work and hours of practice result in championship play. Only in a doubles match does a boy share his ability with a teammate. The players must be on their toes every second in order to be winners. Last year our team had a fairly successful season. Ray Sauer was the number one player on the team, and in the school tournament, Ray was the champion. This season it is expected that he will be one of the top boys in the state. Our additional hopes are placed in Robert Lawrence, Steve Hackett, and Peter Lockwood.

Varsity Baseball

March strode briskly in, and with it, the applicants for the 1958 baseball season. Remembering the spirit of last year's squad and the fact that they came in second in the State Championship, the present team with these men from last year's group face the promise of an excellent season under Coach Raymond Carroll. Those who achieved special mention in '57 are: third basemen, Bill Taylor; first baseman and pitcher, Ed Murphy; second baseman, Bill Lancellotta; and center fielder, Jim Thebault, form the nucleus of a powerful '58 squad.

Mr. Carroll signs up this season's future baseball stars Donald Budlong, Edward Murphy, Mr. Carroll, William Taylor, Paul Maresca, William Lancellotta, Alan Caito, Robert Allenson, Peter Doly, Milton Bell.

D. Rapson, S. Stevens, P. Resendes, B. Tubman, J. Williams, E. Rivers, P. Whitehead, J. Scott, M. Archambault, S. Nordin, J. Neal, P. Amend, A. Ball, R. O'Neill, B. Hay, S. Smith, J. Reardon, N. LaSalle, J. Lynch, N. Wetherell, J. Bulson, C. Perreault, B. Rose.

Fencing Club

Several of the advanced members of the Fencing Club joined the Amateur Fencing League of America which enabled them to compete in many meets, the first of which was an open meet at Brandeis University in January. The club invited women from the Y.W.C.A. in Boston to fence with them in January, which was an opportunity, not only to know these women better, but also to gain some valuable pointers. On March 16, twenty girls from the club — beginners, intermediates, and advanced fencers — competed in an all School Girl Tournament at Brandeis University. A parents' night in April was the final activity of the club, where the girls held demonstration matches and displayed their skills.

The officers pause during a practice session to discuss their participation in a future fencing meet. Shirley Stevens, Equipment Chairman; Priscilla Amend, President; Mrs. Downs; Carolyn Perreault, Assistant Equipment Chairman. (Not pictured: Joy Corbett, Scribe; Dorothy Corbitt, Program Chairman.)

Judy McMillin falls victim to a misguided foil.

Paula Whitehead, Ruth Robinson, Carol DeMaula, Barbara Hay and Nancy Wetherell get some much needed advice on the proper grip of a club and the correct stance from an unseen Miss Bailey.

Some pre-game practice gives Carol Hirschen and Roberta Billson a headstart.

Girls' Sports

Under the direction of Mrs. Downs, Miss Bailey, and Miss Morando, many girls are able to participate in after-school sports, among which are: archery, badminton, basketball, fencing, field hockey, golf, softball, tennis, and volleyball. Any girl who is sincerely interested in a particular sport may participate. By using the point system, girls may obtain letters and numerals. After accumulating 75 points, she receives her numerals; 155 points qualify her as the recipient of a school letter, while a letter with a gold star may be earned by the accumulation of 225 points. Tournaments are held during the year in which girls display their various abilities.

Learning the basic fundamentals of badminton in an after school play time are many sophomores, juniors, and seniors.

Rhode Island Honor Society

Seventy-one students, or eighteen per cent of the senior class, achieved the distinction of being named to the R. I. Honor Society in February, and on April 10, were honored at an assembly at which James F. O'Neill, principal of Classical High School was the main speaker, and at a tea sponsored by the faculty of the high school. The invocation was given by the Reverend G. Albin Dahlquist, pastor of the Asbury Methodist Church and the main speaker was introduced by Horace E. Hobbs, Assistant Superintendent of Warwick schools. Mr. Scott and Mr. Mournighan presented honor society pins to the seniors, and the benediction was pronounced by the Reverend Francis DeLellis, assistant pastor of St. Timothy's Chuch, Hoxsie.

NATIONAL MERIT SCHOLARSHIP

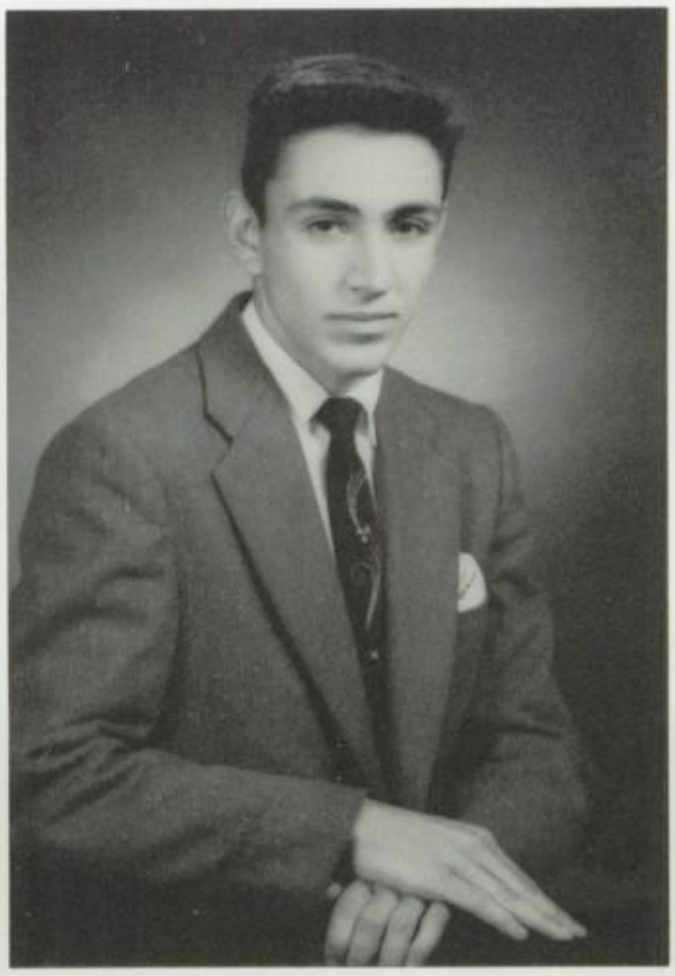
Sponsored by corporations throughout the United States such as General Motors and Ford Foundation, the National Merit Scholarship is one of the greatest scholastic achievements a high school senior can attain. Warwick was fortunate in having three seniors as semi-finalists: James Dann, David Greene, and Gene Kopf. Just before the yearbook deadline, it was announced that James Dann was one of the winners.

Chosen by senior girls and members of the faculty, Judith McMillin was the recipient of the D.A.R. Award, granted each year to a senior girl who has excelled in the qualities of leadership, character, scholarship, patriotism, and dependability.

As co-editor of the Gryphon and as a member of the senior executive committee and Student Council, Judy has become a leader of her class and was partly responsible for the revolutionary change in the class yearbook. Her active interest in the girls' athletic program displays another facet of her versatility. Because of the nature of the award, Judy has justly earned this recognition as it is the highest honor received by a senior girl.

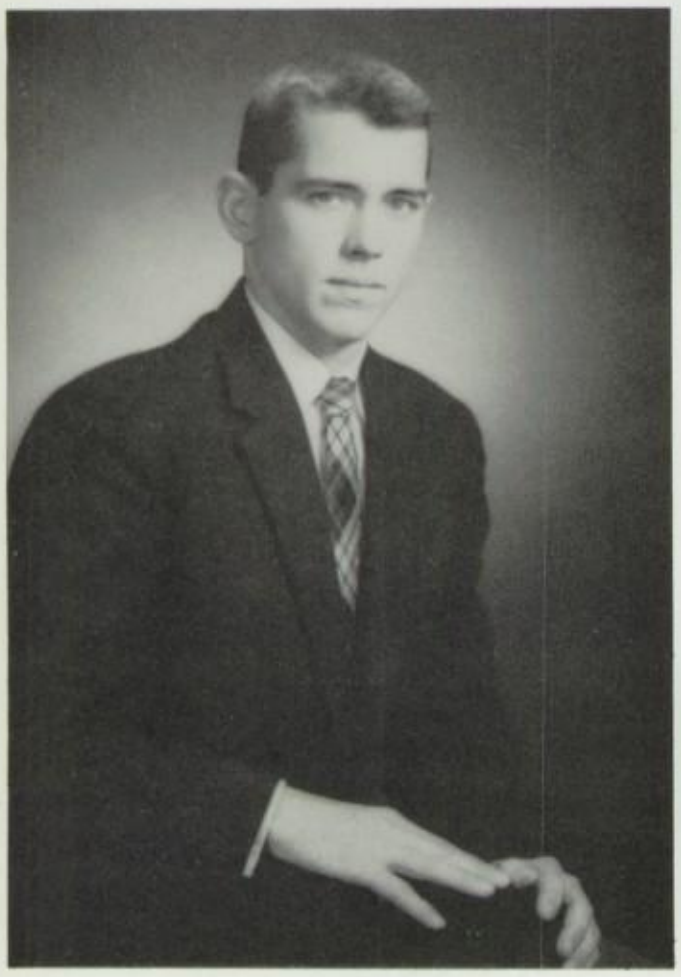
Members of the Senior class are deeply indebted to Miss Conlin and Mr. Riley who, as advisors to the Class of 1958, have given unselfishly of their time in an effort to make every project a social and financial success. In addition to aiding the Executive Committee in important decisions concerning seniors, they have spent many hours in preparing college applications and guiding students to a successful future. (Not pictured: Michael Morry, Head of Guidance Department)

Class Officers



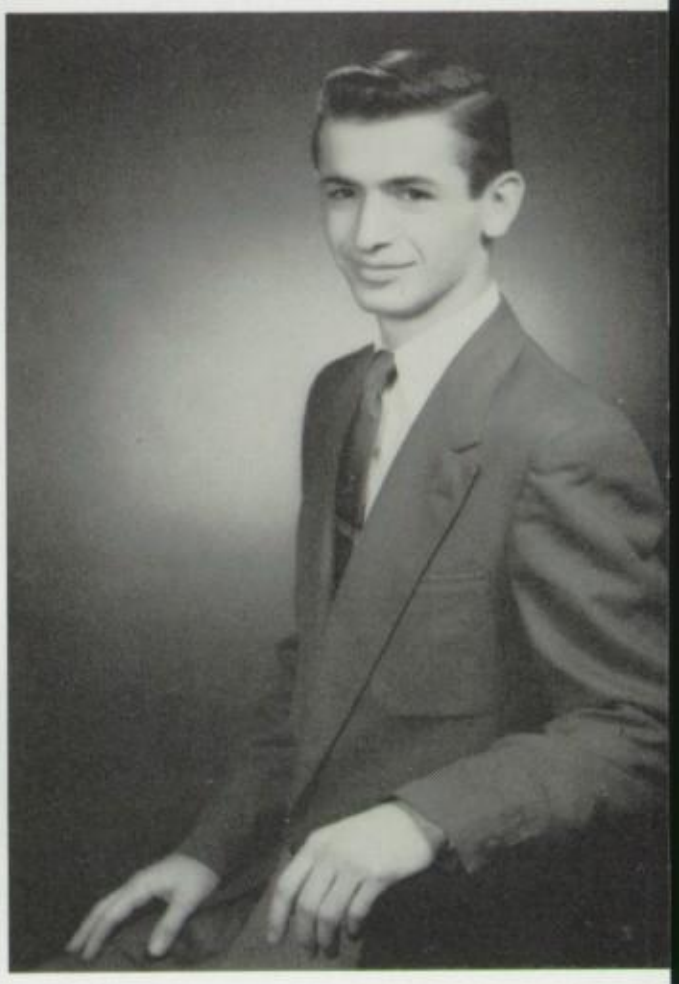
EDWARD INFANTOLINO
President

Through participation in various school activities — track, cross country, executive committee, sports editor of the Hurricane Herald — Ed Infantolino had gained an understanding of student preferences. This was exemplified by the competent way in which he presided at the executive meetings and officiated at the class dances.



ROBERT BOTTS
Vice-President

The Vice-president of the Senior Class had been an active member of the school hockey team for three years. Bob had also been active in Hi-Y. As an officer he worked diligently on the organization of class affairs, was willing to decorate for dances, and offered assistance wherever he could.



HENRY GAUTHIER
Treasurer

As treasurer of the Senior Class, Henry proved himself invaluable. Eager to see the Christmas Dance as successful as possible, he devised a plan to accommodate more couples — the small auditorium was transformed to provide additional dancing space.

VIRGINIA ANDERSON
Secretary

Because of her lively interpretation of "I Can't Say No" in the Revue, Ginny is known to many students. She was active, too, as a varsity football cheerleader — contributing a loud and peppy yell when the team needed encouragement. Serving as secretary, Ginny was capable and displayed a willingness to help on any committee.
